EXPANSION of the crowded facilities at Harrison Memorial Library at Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street may come about if plans to add an annex under discussion by the board of trustees come to fruition. A proposal to construct a city-library parking facility in conjunction with the owners of the Pine Inn also has been discussed by the city council; the parking project, if approved, would tie in with plans for the annex.

WHEN MERIDETH and Matthew Smith want to check out books from the children's department in a few more years, they may have to go to the proposed Harrison Memorial Library annex. Trustees are expected to hear a new annex report at their July meeting that will answer the questions that came up during a special study session June 11. (Michael R. Gardner photo)

THE HARRISON Memorial Library Board of Trustees may decide to relocate the reference department in the main building to the proposed annex, which is on the west side of Lincoln Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. In a special study session June 11, trustees favored moving either the reference or children's department to the proposed annex. (Michael R. Gardner photo)

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

HOW LARGE should the proposed Carmel library annex be? Should it be a one or two story structure? How can it be staffed? How many hours should it remain open? Which collections should be moved to the new site? Just how much annex can be bought for $750,000?

Trustees faced a multitude of questions during a special study session on the annex June 11, and answers were few and far between.

Trustees want to build an 8,000 to 10,000 sq. ft. annex on city-owned property on the west side of Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

Funds for the annex, which is expected to cost about $100 per square foot, are earmarked through a special trust fund. The balance in that trust fund is about $750,000, Library Director Peg Richter said.

How to cut costs and afford future staff for the annex is a major concern for trustees, who have laid off the children's librarian and closed the library on Sundays and most holidays to save money.

"This is a period of retrenchment for the library. But I feel we have a long-term responsibility to look ahead, two to three years," said board President Francis Herrick.

"It is obvious to all of those who use the library and more obvious perhaps to members of the board that we need more space," he said. "It is our responsibility to keep looking at more space even in these times of retrenchment."

Herrick predicted that even if plans for the proposed annex proceed smoothly, it will be two to three years before actual construction can begin.

"We must think long-term rather than short-term. We must think of the time when financial stringencies are not with us," Herrick said. "I'm sure if we looked in the library, one thing would be clear; we have plenty of books, plenty of materials, but not plenty of space."

Johnny can't read

Dear Editor:

The world is fast becoming a society of "Vidiots" because too many people have never learned the pleasure and benefits derived from reading. It has to be taught when one is young and impressionable.

How then, could we allow our excellent children's librarian, Alice Terrell, to be dropped from the staff of the library. She helped to instill a joy of reading which is rare today. She gave children an understanding not only of what they are reading but what is available to them. The joy of reading, the understanding of what they have read and the educational benefits to them stem from a child's early reading habit.

I, as an author, was an avid reader from childhood and am appalled at Miss Terrell having lost her position which will prove to be a much greater loss to the children.

I agree with Miss Terrell's statement in the Pine Cone, that it is ironic that Carmel can afford to pay $100 per square foot for a mini-park but not pay the salary of a librarian. I would think her position should be a priority because the children of Carmel are indeed the future of Carmel.

Sell right-of-way

Dear Editor:

What really gets me upset are all those irrational and stupid arguments I see and hear in favor of building some brand new four lane highway down Hatton Canyon behind Carmel High School in order to solve the slow-downs that occur on the two-lane stretch of Highway 1 between Ocean Avenue and Rio Road.

First of all, the problem on Highway 1 is a limited one, because these slow-downs only take place during morning and afternoon rush and on the big tourist weekends. Secondly, there is so much space to reasonably widen the road, that talk of destroying homes or the beauty of the highway is nonsense.

In the third place, the widening of Highway 1 can be accomplished by adding an extra lane on both sides, including turning lanes. That would more than adequately eliminate this bottleneck and could be done today for 1 million dollars or less.

Compare this solution to the one that proposes to make this section of Highway 1 into a six lane freeway with overpasses for $4 million. That's really going overboard, as anyone who has driven through this bottleneck well knows.

But now compare this solution to the one that would spend $17 million for a totally new four lane freeway down Hatton Canyon to solve the problems of the old Highway and which would destroy a totally unspoiled green belt area. That's ridiculous. That would be irresponsible management of public funds and would be more destructive to the environment than any other solution.

It's no wonder that Cal-Trans is presently considering the sale of Hatton Canyon. The resulting funds could then be used for widening this bottleneck of Highway 1. An excellent idea that deserves support from everyone.

'Treacherous traffic'

Dear Editor:

In Janet Crego's letter to the editor May 27 she asks that Highway 1 near Carmel High School not be widened, and that no road be built in Hatton Canyon. And, further, that we "travel a little slower and savor the Monterey Cypress, Toyon Berry and Monterey Pines ... while breathing the pure oxygen."

Well, if she can drive any slower than stopped I'd be surprised, and smell anything but gasoline fumes in the stalled traffic I'd be even more amazed.

To view the trees — well if she doesn't keep a sharp eye on this treacherous traffic she'll be a statistic rear-end.

Space 'war zone'

Dear Editor:

Space will be turned into another war zone when, on June 27, NASA's Columbia orbits with her first secret military cargo.

The arms race takes another menacing turn when NASA's space shuttle tests infrared radiation detectors to see if they can sense heat from missiles far below or checks military devices to see if they can hunt, kill or capture satellites in orbit.

Clearly, such tests by our "civilian" space agency flagrantly violate international space laws and our promise given last February in Geneva, where we agreed that America's space program would be carried out in scrupulous adherence to the Outer Space Treaty of 1967.

By unsheathing its sword in space, NASA contravenes the President's belated attempts to wage peace when he suggested that both superpowers get off the arms race treadmill at the same time.

If the superpowers insist on using space as their combat arena, the United Nations must try to stop these nuclear gladiators. Space must remain weapons-free to safeguard humankind.

Police staffing defended

Dear Editor:

If Police Chief Jack McGilvray says the city needs a detective and a full-time desk officer, the money should be made available. In my contacts with Chief McGilvray (through the Traffic Committee and the Business License and Code Review Board) I have found him to be an intelligent and conservative leader. The number of burglaries last year (116) and the few solved (seven) make it hard to dispute his conclusion.

Comparing Carmel's police needs to those of other cities, as Councilman Maradei seems to have done, is specious. It doesn't take into consideration our city's unique business district and the daily influx of visitors that swells our population. Further, why should the fact that other cities have to work under "constraints" mean that Carmel should do so, if it doesn't have to?

The Carmel Police Department should be staffed realistically, to meet the existing needs of this city.

Congratulations to grads

Dear Editor:

Three cheers for Marsha Kading, the Carmel High School staff and the Class of '82!

You showed your friends, parents, school board and community that it is still possible to have a dignified commencement. Your beautiful ceremony attests to the fact that four years of high school can be acknowledged with a mature and serious graduation exercise.

As a former teacher of some of the students (and a parent of one), I was extremely proud to be a part of the guest section.

Congratulations to you all!

Density transfer scheme stirs renewed distrust of government

By ROBERT MISKIMON

COMPLEXITIES of a proposed transfer of development credit system to implement conservation policies in the Big Sur coastal plan seem to have overwhelmed the Monterey County Planning Commission and citizens alike.

The concept, proposed in a draft policy prepared by Fourth District Monterey County Supervisor Michal Moore in conjunction with Peter Bass of the Coastal Conservancy, is based on an easily understandable principle which attempts to build equity into coastal planning.

Under the TDC policy, property owners with parcels in the "critical viewshed" areas designated for very low density would be permitted to sell development rights to be used in other areas designated for higher density.

As a means to compensate property owners for the loss of development potential, the program seems reasonable. But there are a host of legal and technical questions which have not been resolved that now confront the planning commission. (See related story in this issue).

Another concern is the apparently negligible degree of public participation in the development of the TDC policy, as pointed out by Roger Newell, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee for the Big Sur Local Coastal Program.

Others, including the Coast Property Owners Association, have called for the complete elimination of the TDC system as hopelessly complex and unworkable.

Somehow, grass roots citizens once again feel left out of, and turned off by, what they perceive as the high-handed planning ploys of elected county officials.

The planning commission would be wise to schedule more public hearings and to consider alternatives to the TDC system to implement the Big Sur Local Coastal Program before it forwards a recommendation to the board of supervisors.

There may be answers to some of the questions that surround the TDC proposal and it may prove to be the best way for the county to go in implementation of the Big Sur plan. But there needs to be more public involvement in, and discussion, of the concept before it is embraced by the board of supervisors.

The Mayor's Report

General plan questionnaires will soon reach Carmelites

By CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND

Soon Carmel citizens will receive a questionnaire asking for your opinion on topics discussed by the Citizen's Advisory Committee for the Carmel General Plan. I certainly hope you all will carefully review, answer and return these questionnaires. We truly need your input. To "whet your appetite" here are a few of the queries submitted, but not necessarily included in one topic of the questionnaire:

Traffic/Circulation: "1. Should the city actively pursue a solution to the traffic congestion on Highway 1? 2. Do you consider vehicle speed a problem within your residential area? 3. Are you satisfied with the present bus service in Carmel, or do you feel that the city should consider establishment of a mini-bus system? 4. Should new or expanding businesses be required to provide off-street parking? 5. Should the city allow, control, restrict, prohibit non-resident parking in the residential zone? 6. Do you believe employers in the business district should provide employee parking?"

Circulation/Noise will be the topics discussed with the consultant, Earth Metrics, at the General Plan Committee meetings planned for July 22 and Aug. 5. The meetings are held at city hall and start at 7:30 p.m. Your comments and ideas are so important — won't you please plan to attend?

Our last mayor, Barney Laiolo, has answered my questions about the "Bastons de Mando." Evidently there were two visits to Petra, and each group brought back one. They are used by the mayor to "convene" meetings by banging it on the floor and to signal that "the meeting will come to order" by raising the staff overhead. (Do you think we should try this method of starting our meetings?)

It would be interesting to display these "batons" and other gifts to the city now hidden in the vault. This may be possible through the gift to the city by Mrs. George Gore of a lockable bookcase/curio cabinet which dates exactly from the period when our city hall was built, 1913. And, at last, the long-awaited, long-needed renovation of the working areas in city hall should start by the end of this month. The staff, now tucked into closets and crannies, both needs and deserves adequate and reasonably efficient work and storage space. Hopefully, as soon as this is done we can begin to upgrade the Council Room. It seems ridiculous for Carmel to have the shabbiest and most uncomfortable council chambers of any city on the Peninsula. If any of you have ideas which would help us in this remodeling, please let me know.

Big Sur density transfer scheme faces grilling by county planners

By ROBERT MISKIMON

A THREE-MEMBER subcommittee of the Monterey County Planning Commission will ask for more public hearings and discussion of alternatives to a proposed transfer of development credit policy for Big Sur.

The subcommittee is to present its report and recommendations to the planning commission at its Wednesday, June 30 meeting in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Commissioners Gary Varga of Carmel Valley, David Hendrick of Pebble Beach, and Tom Mill of Toro Park were appointed to review and make recommendations on the controversial land use mechanism proposed for inclusion in the Big Sur Local Coastal Program.

The transfer of development credit policy would designate some parcels in Big Sur for extremely low density or open space, and would enable owners of those parcels to sell development rights to be used in other areas designated for higher density.

Fourth District Monterey County Supervisor Michal Moore, in conjunction with the Coastal Conservancy, prepared the transfer of development credit (TDC) policy as a means to compensate property owners in Big Sur for the loss of development rights which would result from zoning restrictions in the LCP.

Moore's proposed TDC policy would set a limit of 600 new residences and 600 new visitor-serving units in Big Sur, and would "grandfather" between 500 and 550 additional residences on legal, buildable lots of record. Density credits would be assigned on the basis of gross acreage.

Under the proposal, development beyond one residential unit per parcel would be permitted on the basis of one residential unit per 400 acres above the first 40 acres.

Owners of property in the "critical viewshed" would be permitted to sell development rights for use on other parcels designated as "receiver sites" if they filed a permanent deed restriction with the county.

But the subcommittee, after a review of Supervisor Moore's proposal, concluded that "TDCs have substantial legal and administrative difficulties," according to Commissioner Gary Varga.

Some of those difficulties may be remedied by amendments to the proposed TDC policy; if they can not be resolved other alternatives to achieve the same result should be considered, the subcommittee has concluded.

COMMISSIONER VARGA ticked off a list of concerns about Supervisor Moore's proposed TDC policy which he feels need to be fully addressed:

- Allocation of density credits by acreage is "arbitrary" and should be based on some rationale proven to be consistent with the land use provisions of the coastal plan.

- The connection between the transfer of development credit policy and implementation of the Big Sur LCP has not been clearly defined.

- Is a TDC a security, within the definition of the law? "Without an appropriate legal opinion that it's not a security, there's a possibility commissioners could end up in jail if they vote on it," Varga, an attorney, speculated.

- Tax consequences for owners of viewshed property who sell their development rights have not been spelled out. "Is his tax the same, once he's sold the TDC?" Varga asked. "How does he get the reduction in value on his property?"

- Implementation of the TDC policy could impose a burdensome and time-consuming work load on the county planning staff, and could require preparation of environmental impact reports by developers.

- No method for legal recording of the sale or transfer of TDCs has been worked out. Implementation of this technicality could require the passage of special implementing ordinances by county supervisors.

- There is nothing in the proposal that requires viewshed property owners to record their land for the sale of TDCs, without which the effectiveness of the system could be blunted.

- Claims of inverse condemnation — both by property owners in the viewshed as well as by those with land in receiver areas — could be presented effectively in court.

- There is an inherent conflict in the TDC policy between the need to protect the environment and the constitutional and legal rights of property owners.

One of the alternatives to a transfer of development credit system which ought to be considered is a point system, similar to a mechanism contained in the court-suspended 1980 Carmel Valley Master Plan, Varga suggested.

Dave Young, Monterey County staff planner, said the point system in the Carmel Valley Master Plan has never been implemented, but said it could theoretically work in the context of the Big Sur coastal plan.

The system envisions a point system whereby development proposals are ranked in terms of how well they conform to land use restrictions of the overall plan. "The basic criterion you work from is limiting the amount of development," Young explained.

"The more suitable the development, the higher the score. Those in the upper 10 percent, for example, might be those approved."

COAST PROPERTY Owners Association President John Harlan has called Supervisor Moore's TDC proposal "hopelessly complex, of questionable origin, (and) based on an extremist interpretation of the Coastal Act's viewshed provisions."

The policy was "developed in closed meetings by the people who were at the very same time holding public hearings on the Big Sur LCP, folded into the Big Sur LCP without so much as a by-your-leave and activated with the use of public funds before the TDC concept was presented to the public," Harlan said.

SERENITY of a secluded spot on the Big Sur coast, as captured in "Garrapata Beach" by Carmel photographer Morley Baer, gives little clue to the storm of controversy that gathers over the transfer of development credit program proposed for inclusion in the Big Sur Local Coastal Program. The TDC plan would permit the sale of development rights from land in the critical viewshed area to other parcels where higher development densities would be permitted. Some critics have called for a completely new approach to the goals of environmental protection.

But the subcommittee, after a review of Supervisor Moore's proposal, concluded that "TDCs have substantial legal and administrative difficulties," according to Commissioner Gary Varga.

The fact that the TDC policy was "presented to the public only after public input was in effect closed and before the related LCP has been approved by the Coastal Commission" goes against the grain of the Coastal Act, according to the CPOA president.

"The tainted TDC concept for Big Sur subverts the Coastal Act and the LCP process and creates more problems than it solves," Harlan said. "The TDC system should be discarded in toto and a wholly new viewshed policy — strictly consistent with all Coastal Act provisions — (should) be developed."

Ed Brown, central coast director of the Coastal Commission, indicated in a May 24 letter to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors that a TDC system for Big Sur is desirable, but offered some suggestions for revision of Moore's proposal.

"We are very much in favor of a workable TDC program for Big Sur to offer equitable treatment to owners of 'unbuildable' parcels," Brown indicated. The TDC program may be considered by the Coastal Commission after the LCP is certified, Brown said.

"The large parcels which generate inn unit density credits are, for the most part, the least suitable for inn unit development," Brown indicated. "We are concerned that the suitable sites, generally small parcels in developed areas, will have to acquire these credits at considerable cost, creating a built-in disincentive for visitor-serving development."

Brown said the total number of 600 inn units projected in the TDC policy is still 100 more than the 500 units certified by the Coastal Commission. "We are concerned that the number of permitted units is still unrelated to the availability or suitability of sites," Brown added.

ROGER NEWELL, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee on the Big Sur Local Coastal Program, said the transfer of development credit system is confusing to many Big Sur residents.

And many Big Sur citizens feel a loss of public control over planning processes that will affect their community because of the way in which the TDC policy has been developed, Newell added.

"The whole planning process is slipping further and further away from a continuity of public participation," Newell told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

"The Citizens Advisory Committee has not been called upon to offer a response or to participate in the development of the (TDC) concept," he said. "That fact, plus the negotiations Supervisor (William) Peters had with the Coastal Commission, has thwarted community participation."

The result is that the TDC system, which is a key element in the Big Sur coastal plan, remains an esoteric mystery to many Big Sur residents, Newell said. Many citizens who have been active in the planning process now feel "discouraged," he added.

"The process has become very disjointed. It's become very difficult for anyone to follow the refinements and changes in the plan as they occur," Newell said. "In the beginning of the planning process, we had a very effective line of communication. That process has now been thwarted through some specific things at the board of supervisors level to limit participation."

"We should go back and build the lines of communication with the advisory committees set up to provide public participation," Newell said. "There is a lot of misunderstanding about the TDC program. The TDC program — however well-conceived it is — did not grow out of the public process."

Newell said he does not necessarily oppose a TDC system, but said it is next to impossible to judge its effectiveness or appropriateness in light of the Coastal Act.

"You don't know how the Coastal Act has been addressed with the TDC idea," he said. "There is no way to evaluate, defend, or support it in light of the Coastal Act."

Monastery Beach parking lot proposal is revived

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

A PLAN to construct a parking lot near Monastery Beach that died 16 months ago because of local opposition has been revived by the Point Lobos Advisory Committee.

Earl Moser, chairman of the committee, has sent a letter to Carmel Unified School District Board of Education President Ken White that asks school support for the parking lot proposal.

The proposal calls for the state to use the rights-of-way directly to the south and behind Bay School for a road, which would lead to the parking lot site. The property for the parking lot is in a hilltop meadow area about 100 yards northwest of Bay School and overlooks Monastery Beach.

The Bay School site is owned by the Carmel Unified School District; it is surrounded by the state-owned beach and right-of-way areas, and three private residences.

A similar plan for a parking lot was dropped last year after it faced strong opposition from the school board. In a letter written to the state Jan. 29, 1981, the board said:

"It seems inconceivable to the citizens of the district that you propose a parking lot to be constructed on this beach front land. Sharing the site with the children, ages three to seven, are a grove of eucalyptus trees, an underground spring, a creek and a variety of natural plants and animals.

"An asphalt parking lot would destroy all that is natural to this area and would introduce increased traffic, safety hazards, pollution, vandalism, and environmental degradation."

The school district asked in its letter that the state consider an alternative that would place the parking lot location on the extreme south side of Monastery Beach, also known as San Jose Creek Beach.

The parking lot proposal was apparently dead in the minds of school officials, but the letter from Moser has stirred the interest once again.

'An asphalt parking lot would destroy all that is natural to this area and would introduce increased traffic, safety hazards, pollution, vandalism, and environmental degradation.'

Wendy Banks, morning program director at Bay School, believes that the parent-cooperative nursery board of directors will "vehemently oppose" the plan.

"We are vehemently opposed to the parking area not only because of the obvious problem of safety for the children, but it is also damaging to the environment," Mrs. Banks said. "To me, it is like an open invitation saying to come and use this beach and the beach is not safe."

"Why would the state invite people to a beach where there are injuries and deaths? If anything, I would think they would like to discourage use. Putting in a parking lot is like saying this is a marvelous beach."

Three Carmel Unified School District Board of Education members contacted by the Pine Cone/Outlook also expressed opposition to the proposal.

"We're against a parking lot. But if they have to put in a parking lot, it should be as far away from the school as possible," board member Doyle Clayton said. "It is just not a compatible thing to have next to a school site."

Board President Ken White agreed: "I don't think there should be a parking lot around the school. I haven't changed my position from last year."

Board member Barbara Sanford said she does not see any reason why the board should change its position and support the proposal.

A NEW PLAN for a parking lot at Monastery Beach has been unveiled by Earl Moser, chairman of the Point Lobos Advisory Board. Youngsters who played on the

"As long as we have the school, I don't see how we can change our minds," she said.

Moser said he understands the concerns raised by the district but said he feels the current parking situation at the beach is unsafe.

"On weekends, so many scuba divers come to that beach and park along the highway and of course they change clothes and unload their gear there," Moser said. "Cars go by at their usual speed and there are near accidents and minor accidents."

"Sooner or later someone will have a fatal accident. When and if that occurs, there will be a public outcry for off-highway parking. There would be a sudden decision. If that happens, the site would be chosen without full consideration."

Moser said a complete investigation into an appropriate site should be conducted so that a decision is not reached in a "state of immediacy" after a fatal accident.

Moser said he does not believe a parking lot would create a hazard for the students of Bay School.

"I don't feel it would be unsafe. The cars

will not go through that corridor at a dangerous speed," he said. "I feel the present ingress and egress used by the school is in a dangerous place."

Moser said he doesn't feel that Monastery Beach is dangerous.

"The beach is only unsafe like the entire coastline here is unsafe," he said. "It is unsafe to people who visit and don't realize that a large wave occasionally comes along. People who visit the ocean should realize that possibility."

A parking lot would neither encourage nor discourage use of the beach, Moser said.

"I don't think it will do either one. If anything, it might discourage use because parking of the car will be so distant," he said.

Moser said that he does not know when the state Department of Parks and Recreation will review the new proposal. If a public hearing is held, it will probably be scheduled on the Monterey Peninsula, he added.

And Moser pointed out that the tight budget means that parking lot construction would be "several years" off before funding could be obtained.

Carmel parent questions special education funds

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

THE STATE has taken the Carmel Unified School District for another ride on its roller coaster through a world of on-again, off-again funding for mandated programs.

And this time, parent Grace Davis has joined the passenger list.

Mrs. Davis has launched a one-woman investigation into the district special education budget and so far her efforts have uncovered several discrepancies in funding for the special education program and produced a full-blown report from Rich Hawkins, director of pupil personnel, curriculum and instruction.

Hawkins' report is expected to be presented to the board of education when it meets at 7:30 p.m. June 24 at Carmel High School.

The special education program is designed to help students who are physically handicapped or have learning disabilities.

Mrs. Davis attended the past few board meetings and has twice spoken on the special education funds. After her second presentation, the board suggested that Hawkins prepare a full report.

Mrs. Davis says she is not against special education classes, she just wants to know why a financially-troubled board of education spends more money on the program than what is required by law and why the total amount of funds budgeted for the program appears to shift during the course of the fiscal year.

"I just want to stand up and have them say if we need the program or if we don't need it," Mrs. Davis said. "If we need it, I don't want to take it away from the kids. But if we don't, then we can use the money on other programs."

Mrs. Davis has questioned why the 1981-82 publication budget listed the special education costs at $442,045 and then, as the year progressed, the figure increased to $509,571.

Hawkins has indicated that the $509,571 estimate was given to the state in August, 1981. But Mrs. Davis responded:

"To say that the board could have had this figure if they asked for it is totally unsatisfactory. Should not a difference so large — $67,526 — have been brought specifically and immediately to the board and the public's attention, as soon as it was known, particularly as planning was at that moment in progress?"

"If the state in Sacramento is entitled to a prompt report of the 'correct' figures, why must we locally have to wait 10 months to learn of them second hand? How can our board sensibly budget and plan under such conditions?"

Board President Ken White said he was aware that the budget figures would change, but said he is more concerned now about the causes of the increased costs.

White blames the state for mandating the program and then slowly withdrawing from its promise to fully fund special education.

He said Carmel has joined in a lawsuit with several other districts that demands that the state fully fund mandated programs, such as special education.

"I don't like it and I don't think anyone on the board likes it," White said. "The state mandates the program, puts in the qualifications and then reduces or cuts the funds."

WHITE ADDED that he wants to take a closer look at the special education budget, but not until complete figures are available in August.

Board member Doyle Calyton agreed with White: "This is the reason we have joined the lawsuit. I'm not sure we're spending $60,000 more than we are required. We are required to have the program."

But Board member Barbara Sanford questions whether it is necessary to spend that amount of money on the program. She pointed out that last year the board learned that the food service, nursery school and adult school programs also needed additional monies from the district general fund.

"I am concerned about it. I want to get the right information," she said. "I think it is an outstanding program, but do we have to spend that much money?"

The Carmel special education program serves about 194 students with a staff equivalent to 11 full-time teachers. Hawkins said. There are five basic areas of income in the $540,000 special education budget:

- Required general funds encroachment, which are the monies local school districts must contribute for special education students.

- Special education state funds allocated to districts based on average daily attendance (ADA) figures.

- State master plan monies allocated by the state.

- Public Law 91-142. These funds are provided through a special federal government grant.

- Additional local fund contributions. This is the income area that has generated most of Mrs. Davis' concern. These are the funds the district must pay over and above the amount "technically" required by law.

Mrs. Davis has no real quarrel with the ADA funds ($7,673) or the federal monies ($31,934), but she has raised questions about other income areas.

Her main concern is the "additional local contribution fund," which she says is too high in light of the financial problems that face the district.

"Monies are shrinking so it is important that we spend it in all areas," she said. "The dollars are shrinking and we have to make every one count."

Mrs. Davis claims the district figure of $78,650 for the additional local fund contribution does not match actual expenditures.

IN HIS REPORT, Hawkins agreed there are discrepancies between the budget figures and what the totals are now.

"As you are probably aware, the requirements for programs to be provided and the formula for funding special education programs were both drastically changed by the legislature in July of 1980 and again, almost as drastically, in July 1981," Hawkins said in a letter to Mrs. Davis.

"Because of the frequent and significant changes in legislation, it has been difficult for those of us working with these programs on a daily basis to know what services must be provided and how those services will be funded."

"Adjustments are made in services provided during the year according to the needs of students. Not all of these adjustments can be anticipated during the preceding summer. For these reasons there are many deviations from the projections made in a budget which is prepared in July and August."

Hawkins said the state agrees to grant a certain amount and projections are made for the district budget based on the assumption that the legislature allocates all of those funds.

But several times during the 1981-82 year, Hawkins has been informed by the state that it could not meet its obligations, so the local contribution had to be increased. Then the state might allocate more monies and the local budget might decrease, he pointed out.

"A budget is just a plan. It doesn't set a minimum or a maximum on what you are going to spend," Hawkins said. "It's a target. We overspend in some areas and underspend in others. You can't predict 100 percent accurately in August. It's all based on estimates."

Hawkins agrees that the district does spend more money on special education than what is legally required.

"I think it is important to say that the philosophy of this district has been to provide quality programs for all students, insofar as possible, including students with handicaps and special needs," Hawkins stated in his letter.

"At the same time we are working diligently to reduce costs and to see that special education programs are operated in a cost effective manner. It does cost more to educate a handicapped child but an effective educational program saves taxpayers' dollars later by reducing the amount of costly care needed by handicapped individuals when they leave school," Hawkins said.

Hawkins said the district will "tighten our belts" in an effort to bring the $60,483 local contribution figure down to "zero."

"The district is going to have to deal with the costs if they want to continue the programs. I think the goal is to try to tighten our belts and get the excess costs down to zero."

Mrs. Davis adds that there are discrepancies in the "required general funds encroachment" figures used by Carmel and the Monterey County Department of Education.

At first, Carmel estimated it would have to pay a required $144,291, but Hawkins revised that figure to $136,737 in his report to the board.

However, the Monterey County Department of Education business office, which reviews district budgets, disagrees with Hawkins' $136,737 figure.

Jerry Hubbard, county assistant superintendent for administration and business services, believes that the required general funds encroachment figure for Carmel is just $128,657.

Hubbard added that "technically" Carmel does not have to add funds for special education beyond the required $128,657. "Technically no, if they want to keep their costs down," he said.

Scooters under repair

Traffic control officers hoofing it around village

TRAFFIC CONTROL officers in Carmel have been on foot the last few weeks since the familiar motor scooters which usually whisk them around the village have been under repair.

Three of the four Cushman scooters are still parked in a shop in Santa Clara, where they will be fitted with new engines; the fourth vehicle was taken out of service last week for repairs after it also broke down.

"The engines just got worn out from all the mileage," explained Police Chief John McGilvray. "The original engines had been rebuilt a couple of times already and couldn't be repaired again."

The result is that Carmel's five traffic control officers have gotten sore feet at the same time they've made some personal acquaintances among merchants and residents they could never have made while driving their scooters.

Total estimated cost of the repairs is about $6,000, Chief McGilvray indicated. The work will be done by the Cushman dealership which sold the machines to the city of Carmel. The three scooters which will be fitted with new engines were purchased in 1974, 1975, and 1977, he said.

In addition to being a kind of local landmark, the traffic control officers are important to city government. Parking fines generated by these diligent ladies amount to more than $200,000 per year in revenues to the city of Carmel.

Despite worn shoe leather and sore feet, the traffic control officers are philosophical.

Barbara Martin, speaking for the group, put a cheerful face on the situation but admitted 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. had come to seem like "a very long day."

"We're learning to walk a little bit more! Our feet do get tired. But everyone has pitched in and we're doing the job. We've met a lot of nice people, including shopkeepers who come out to greet us and talk."

Why are many drivers surprised? That's because it is easier for the foot soldiers to mark the right front tires, instead of the left rear. It's the left rear motorists are used to checking to see if it's time to move on. Yes, there have been "lots of questions and comments," Barbara Martin said.

Chief McGilvray said the officers can mark any tire; obviously, the one closest to the curb in front is the easiest. He said the scooters' advancing age is the reason for the mechanical failures and the problem is complicated by the fact that the closest repair service is in Santa Clara.

The department has one newer model, somewhat larger than the others, but that one will keep its fellows company in the repair shop after just a week of being the only one on duty.

One local businessman suggested that a benefit dinner be held to raise funds to buy the pedestrian officers new shoes, perhaps to include a parking fee amnesty for donors. To date, however, this idea has not become a reality.

In the meantime, five trim officers walk their beats, twirl their chalk sticks like batons, and keep writing those parking tickets.

ON FOOT since their motorized scooters have been decommissioned for replacement of worn out engines are traffic control officers Monique Moon (left) and Barbara Martin. The five traffic officers have been a familiar sight in the village recently, as they walk their rounds with their chalk sticks at their sides. (R.M. photo).

Juanita Rosser honored by the Red Cross

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross has presented special awards of appreciation to Juanita Rosser for her outstanding volunteer work in the chapter blood services and as secretary of the Board of Directors.

Mrs. Rosser, who had been a staff member of the American Red Cross a number of years ago, has been vitally interested in all the services of the chapter.

Outgoing chapter chairman Douglas Despard, himself the recipient of a special award, said she had worked as the liaison with the Red Cross/Community Hospital Blood Program and was responsible for the successful implementation of a high school student donor plan over the past two years.

Carmel Woods residents want better government

CARMEL WOODS annexation proponents say dissatisfaction with county government is one of their primary motives for wanting to be part of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

And they believe that if annexation of the 170-acre residential area to Carmel succeeds, Carmel Woods residents will have better political representation and better services.

Rowland Fellows and Buzz Schulte of Carmel Woods, two members of the Carmel Annexation II group, told the Pine Cone/Outlook they already feel a part of Carmel more than the Fifth Supervisorial District represented by Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley.

"The city has more concern with the area where I live than the county does because we are so similar in character," said Fellows, who has lived in Carmel Woods since 1975. "It's difficult for the county to be so concerned because they have so many other things to be concerned about."

"I feel we're nearly disenfranchised in Carmel Woods," Fellows added.

"(Supervisor) Bill Peters can't respond to my interests in the same way as a five-member city council can," Schulte said.

The Local Agency Formation Commission is scheduled to consider the proposed annexation at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, June 22 in the Monterey County courthouse in Salinas. If LAFCO approves the annexation, the Carmel City Council must schedule a protest hearing, tentatively set for July 26.

If fewer than 25 percent of the approximately 700 registered voters in the unincorporated Carmel Woods area protest, annexation is approved; if between 25 to 50 percent of the Carmel Woods voters protest, an election must be scheduled; if more than 50 percent protest, annexation fails.

Fellows said another strong motivation for annexation is the likelihood that Monterey County — faced with its own budgetary woes — will cut back on services to Carmel Woods residents.

"There is definitely a concern that the county will cut back 150 to 200 people; at least 10 of those will be sheriff's deputies," Fellows said. "There's no question the county will cut back services and the city could continue those services at minimal cost."

In addition to the $51,000 per year in property tax revenues which would accrue to the city of Carmel from annexation of Carmel Woods, another $80,000 would also flow into the city coffers from various state subventions and miscellaneous taxes, Fellows said.

"In a negotiated tax transfer, the city would receive about $60,000 from gasoline, sales, cigarette, and other taxes," Fellows said. "There would be another $15,000 in transient occupancy tax from the Grosvenor Inn, and another $2,000 or $3,000 from miscellaneous taxes."

The exact amount of revenue which Carmel would receive — outside of property taxes — had not been calculated by LAFCO staff at press time. And Carmel City Administrator Douglas Peterson has not completed an analysis of costs to the city of Carmel to provide municipal services to the 1,800 residents of Carmel Woods.

However, Carmel may face a loss of between $300,000 and $400,000 in state sales tax revenues in 1982-83 if the revenue apportionment formula is shifted to a per-capita basis, Peterson has estimated.

"We feel the additional cost to Carmel would only be one or two policemen," Fellows said. "We don't see it as diluting the level of services in any way."

"It all adds up to a plus as far as Carmel and the Woods are concerned," Schulte said.

Time capsule buried

TWELVE YEARS from now, a group of former Carmelo School students are expected to gather in front of the school site on Carmel Valley Road and unearth a time capsule. Inside, they will find math books, a T-shirt, papers, a tennis shoe and a copy of the Pine Cone/Outlook that reported the closing of the school. Students, staff members and parents gathered June 9 and watched as principal Paul Sheckler, (above and at left) placed the artifacts in a giant garbage can. The can, which serves as the time capsule, was buried in front of the school. Sheckler told the students they should meet 12 years from now and unearth the capsule. (M.G. photos).

Carmel Sanitary District unaffected by new PB district

A $250,000 contract between the Carmel and Pebble Beach Sanitary Districts will not be affected by the formation of a new Community Services District in Pebble Beach.

Pebble Beach voters overwhelmingly approved a measure on the June 8 ballot that authorizes the reorganizations of the sanitary and fire districts into a single government agency called the Community Services District, effective July 1.

Members of the yet-to-be-constructed Community Services District board of directors will be the present members of the sanitary district board, who ran for election unopposed: John Strong, Richard Lord, Charles Christin, Don Durant and George Murphy.

The reorganization was supported by the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) after lengthy hearings on a proposal by Carmel that Pebble Beach merge with its district.

Although the reorganization was against the wishes of the Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors, manager Michael Zambory said the vote will not affect its contract with Pebble Beach for sewage treatment.

"In the contract, it states explicitly that in the event of a sell-out, dissolution or whatever, the contract will continue with the successor of the Pebble Beach Sanitary District," Carmel manager Michael Zambory said.

"To my knowledge, it does not affect the contract at all. I don't know how it could," Pebble Beach Manager Ed Gast said.

The 1981-82 fiscal year contract calls for Pebble Beach to pay about $195,000 to Carmel for sewage disposal. Because of increased flow, that payment will increase to nearly $250,000 for fiscal year 1982-83, Gast said.

Gast wants to get down to the "nuts and bolts" of what the contract means to Pebble Beach during a special meeting of the board at 9:30 a.m. June 21 at the district office, corner of Forest Lake and Lopez Roads (adjacent to the fire station.)

Expected to attend the session are Veronica Ferguson, LAFCO staff analyst, and officials with the county fire and public works departments.

"We're waiting to ask them questions about the mechanisms of the reorganization. We have not had a question-and-answer session with them yet," Gast said. "We didn't want to spend time with it until after it passed. The matter now is how to implement this thing."

Gast said a Community Services District will allow for more local control.

"Mainly it gives the residents of the Forest a greater voice in their own activities," he said.

All of the assets of both agencies will be transferred to the new Community Services District, which will be responsible for work activities, personnel and budgets, he said.

"I don't see any changes in personnel at all," Gast said. "We still need the same amount of people in the sanitary district and fire district."

Formation of the new Community Services District was caused indirectly by the Carmel Sanitary District.

In September, Carmel Sanitary District representatives appeared before LAFCO and proposed that a consolidation with Pebble Beach would save both districts more than $100,000.

Carmel argued that the duplication of general managers, office managers, legal fees and office rent was unnecessary.

A second reason for the consolidation was that the two districts were always involved in arguments over fees and construction work, which has led to court battles, Zambory said.

However LAFCO, and later the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, agreed that Pebble Beach should reorganize its fire and sanitary districts.

Business Beat

*Some good news,
then some bad*

By FLORENCE MASON

LET'S GET the bad news over first. Those signs on the door and windows of The Zoo, at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street, signal another business failure in Carmel.

"Gone for vacation" said one, but the other — "Lease or business for sale" — told the real story. Salinas attorney Steve Fredkin confirmed that he is the attorney for the trustee in a bankruptcy action.

I was unable to reach Zoo owners Mel or Lor Wachter, who opened their shop just two years ago. The Zoo had offered an interesting combination of animal artifacts, designer clothes and home accessories.

THE ELEGANT SET IS COMING

Much more pleasant to report is the news about the new tenants at the southeast corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue, who will replace Sample Safari. It will be "The Elegant Set" at that location, once sought by Dock Lor for his Canton Restaurant.

WHO? Kenneth Derrick, Margaret Miller (better known as Betty) and Eileen Weems. Derrick came to Carmel from Maui, where he has a similar business. Mrs. Miller and her husband are co-owners of the John Miller Galleries. Eileen Weems is Betty Miller's sister.

WHAT? A shop for the retail sale of home furnishings, especially table linens, china and crystal.

Derrick, now a Carmel resident, will continue to operate his shop at the Kapalua Hotel in Maui, Hawaii. The new one came about because many of his customers in the islands came from the Monterey Peninsula or the San Francisco Bay area. This gave him the idea for a shop in Northern California. He met the Millers when they visited Maui and Betty talked about the china and crystal she admired, and these complementary ideas came together. Result: The Elegant Set.

"Elegant" appears to be the right word for Derrick's special interest — tablecloths, runners, napkins and place mats — and for Betty Miller's china and crystal. Derrick says his merchandise is not carried in any other store in Carmel. There are embroidered silk, cotton crochet and linen sets as well as individual items, all imported from mainland China. Mrs.

Miller's contribution to the shop will be one-of-a-kind china and crystal from France.

"It's unique and beautiful crystal made in Montargis, outside Lyons, France," Mrs. Miller said. "All hand-blown and hand-cut and, what is almost unheard of these days, hand-polished! Each piece is signed and there is a full line of drinking glasses and also other items such as jewelry boxes, decanters and even lamps."

Mrs. Miller's introduction to this beautiful crystal came about in Anchorage, Alaska, where the Millers lived for four years. There Betty Miller became friendly with a French girl, Angelique, who owned The Crystal Box shop in Anchorage. Betty fell in love with the beautiful crystal in that shop, which was produced by Angelique's father, who was originally head designer for Baccarat and creator of the famous Baccarat rose. His two sons carry on the family tradition.

Before the Millers left Alaska, Angelique suggested that Betty open her own shop. This was supported by Mrs. Miller's sister, who had been a banker in Ventura County, but who also succumbed to the Carmel charm. The fortuitous meeting with Kenneth Derrick in Maui brought it all together.

The Elegant Set will also offer faience and a line of porcelain from the Limoges area in France, some in limited editions. Betty Miller will be the buyer.

The Millers live in Carmel Highlands. Their son, Greg, has a liking for wide open spaces and has remained in Anchorage. "Still at home are two four-legged children," Mrs. Miller said. "Our dogs!"

RITTMASTER III?

Everything except the name was settled June 3 for Richard and Gloria Rittmaster. They are the new tenants at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street, from which NB Flowers recently moved. That will make three Rittmaster shops in Carmel!

The question about the name arose because police and fire department members of the Business License and Code Review Board were concerned that their personnel, in response to an emergency, might not know whether to go to Rittmaster next to the library, Rittmaster at the Pine Inn, or Rittmaster in the new location. When it approved the business license, the board continued the matter of the shop name to afford board members and the Rittmasters an opportunity to consider alternatives, one of which is "Rittmaster III."

The Rittmasters plan to use all of the 2,800 sq. ft. occupied by the florist. They admire the Carmel stone floor in part of the shop and will preserve that; they plan to use only small throw rugs there. Where there was linoleum, they will install wall-to-wall carpets.

The Rittmasters will add men's clothing, not now featured in their other shops, and will have a larger shoe inventory. They hope to be fully operational in the new location by the middle of next month.

The couple has lived here 12 years and also counts the 10 years before that, when they were visitors to the area, as part of their Carmel history. "We've always loved this building," Rittmaster told the license board.

One of the problems faced by the couple if a radical name change occurs is that they now advertise under the "Rittmaster" name in national magazines such as Vogue and Town and Country. Richard Rittmaster showed his love for his home city when he added: "A 'manufactured' name would be too contrived, anyway — not in keeping with Carmel."

CHANGE IS IN THE AIR

Other changes on the business scene:

• Juan Carlos Rossetti, who has a combined Italian and Argentinian background, hopes to be the new owner of Peter's European Foods on Fifth Street. More about that when it's finalized. When I contacted present owner Peter Schlicht, he said: "Let's close escrow first!" He added that he has no special plans of his own at this time.

• There's a slight change in the name of Gypsy Fashions, one of two businesses still active in the Burlwood Gallery location on Ocean Avenue. Now it is officially "Gypsy, Inc." Owner Brooke Lewis sells gifts and jewelry but he has a new plan to establish a tourist information bureau on the now-vacant mezzanine.

That idea resulted from the number of questions customers ask, Lewis said. He said it would be a subscription service and the bureau would also serve as a resource for Lewis' Ticketron outlet in Cannery Row.

A court decision is expected next month on who will have the master lease now that Burlwood Gallery is in receivership. Gypsy, Inc. and Giles Carmel are the two businesses which sub-lease within.

• Ziona Carmely will expand her electrolysis clinic at Mission Street and Fourth Avenue to include a massage practice, for which she already has a state license. She will become a local resident when she moves from Watsonville to a new home in Carmel Valley.

• It's "Scandia Ocean House Restaurant" now, the final touch on the redecorating project at that Ocean Avenue establishment. The addition of "Ocean House" to the familiar "Scandia" reflects owner Jack Hakim-Baba's new emphasis on fish dishes in a "trimmed-down" menu.

CREATIVE COUPLES

I had planned to devote this entire column to some of the delightful couples I have run across who contribute so much to Carmel and its business life — four in particular. With about half the space taken up by news stories, I am somewhat constrained. Here are two of these special couples; stay tuned next week for two more.

financial consultant. He travels across the country from the Willeys' Carmel Valley home, speaks and conducts seminars on various aspects of finance. His wife, Beverly, says he loves Carmel and wants to develop the financial consulting aspect of his work right here at home.

A major emphasis of that work is personal money management. His concepts are set forth in a compact book, "How to KEEP the Money You Make and Make It GROW!!" which I found to be an informative, easy-to-understand treatment of a complicated subject.

Willey also advises the professionals themselves, including bankers, stockbrokers, insurance agents and real estate licensees among his clients.

Beverly Willey is something of a pioneer in a developing field. She is an "image consultant," working with Marielle Faieta at Marielle's Salon de Beaute in The Barnyard. Her work contributes to Marielle's concept of a "full service" salon. Beverly deals with color analysis, evaluation and updating of wardrobes, shopping for clothes, as well as hair care and makeup. To these, the salon adds manicures, pedicures, facials, massage and cellulite treatment.

Beverly's explanation of "image" is "what the woman wants to present herself as. It doesn't have to be just for formal occasions; it can include casual appearance."

The process starts with a full consultation and proceeds to color analysis and whatever hair and makeup concerns the client may have. Evaluation of the wardrobe is done in the client's home and is followed by shopping — by Beverly alone or with the client — if that is indicated.

There is just one fee for Beverly's service, regardless of the time it takes. To round out her training, she has just completed courses with a well-known San Francisco image consultant.

Before she joined Marielle, Beverly had her own shop — Hair Unlimited — in Salinas. She is a fine example of her own concepts and makes it hard to believe she is old enough to have been in business 20 years.

The Willeys have just returned from a week in Acapulco, where Allan Willey had a speaking engagement. They treasure their time at the Carmel Golf and Country Club home where they have lived for the past five years. Willey, born and educated in Scotland, loves his golf and the couple's 15-year-old son, Chad, pursues both tennis and golf as well as his studies at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

As for Marielle Faieta, she is happily involved in a move to a new home in Tierra Grande with her husband, Fred, and eight-month-old Danielle, whose picture is in a prominent place at the salon. The salon has been open and has expanded its services in The Barnyard for two and one-half years.

THE BLACKSTONES

Rosemary and George Blackstone have pushed back the walls of their store(s) on Lincoln Street.

Rosemary Blackstone is more in evidence in the shops, but George Blackstone, an attorney who commutes to San Francisco three days each week and teaches at Stanford business school, is one-half of the buying team and does the bookkeeping for this children's clothing and toy shop.

How Rosemary and George (the shops) came about is one of those tales that is such fun to learn about.

Rosemary Homer grew up in Hillsborough, a daughter of an especially lovely and community-minded mother, Mrs. Carl Homer, who as it happens was one of the most admired women in my own life. (She was on the board of the hospital where I worked for many years.) Rosemary and George Blackstone continued to live in Hillsborough after their marriage and for 25 years Rosemary was a housewife and very active volunteer.

She credits that volunteer experience, much of it in leadership roles, for her ability to run a business today. That, and an executive training program she went through at The Emporium in San Francisco.

After the Blackstones' children were grown, Rosemary and George moved to San Francisco and to offset the urban atmosphere, they also acquired a weekend home in Carmel. Rosemary's mother joined them and lived at Del Mesa Carmel until her death several years ago.

During those weekends in Carmel, Rosemary and George often talked about moving to Carmel when George retired. Enchanted with some little girl dresses with matching doll dresses she and her mother had seen in Spain, Rosemary added: "And then we'll have a store for clothes like those!"

Then one day something said: "Don't wait, do it now!" So they did. Now with the addition of clothes for girls seven to 14 years old, they have moved the infants' section to the newly extended back of the store. Boys' clothes and accessories are on the "George" side.

Rosemary Blackstone has just been appointed to Carmel's Traffic Committee.

The Blackstones have a son, Carl, who is a law student at the University of Oregon. They also have a daughter, Amy, whom Rosemary describes as "my free spirit." Amy, who plans to be a writer, travels all over the world on a bicycle — her version of her parents' adventurous approach to life.

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM ...

Computers and carpets in city budget

By ROBERT MISKIMON

COMPUTERS, carpets, a noise meter, a traffic counter, a detective and a beach walkway are a few of the favorite things Carmel city administrators have requested in the preliminary 1982-83 budget.

And if things go as City Administrator Doug Peterson would like, the city of Carmel will spend $254,000 of accumulated in lieu parking fees to provide some sort of off-street parking facilities.

The Carmel City Council will also be asked to consider funds for some type of youth recreation program, as well as additional personnel in the building and planning department and some assistance in the city administrator's office.

Altogether, the $4,495,230 preliminary budget for Carmel is an embarrassment of riches compared with the bare bones budgets contemplated by other municipalities for the fiscally austere 1982-83 year.

Revenues balance expenditures almost exactly, except for a proposed expenditure of about $200,000 from reserves of almost $2 million — most of which would be used as part of the proposed $799,375 capital expenditures budget.

"We expect to spend some funds out of reserves for capital outlays," City Administrator Doug Peterson said. "That only means we've spent less than normal for capital outlays in prior years."

Peterson said the expenditure of some reserve funds does not mean the city is in a precarious financial position; to the contrary, some cities already have depleted their reserves and must drastically curtail services and personnel.

The greatest single uncertainty which confronts the 1982-83 Carmel municipal budget is state revenue, which could decrease by $300,000 depending on actions of the legislature, Peterson explained.

Carmel could lose $300,000 of its projected $1.1 million in state sales tax revenues if legislation is enacted to distribute those revenues based on population, rather than directly to their source of collection as is the case now. But that possibility seems remote at this point, Peterson said.

In any event, if the state sales tax distribution formula is altered, Carmel could recover the loss through an increase in the hostelry tax, which provides $1.3 million, or about 31 percent of all city revenues, the city administrator said.

State motor vehicle license fee subventions have dropped from $90,486 in fiscal year 1980-81 to only $30,000 projected for 1982-83. But that fund could be eliminated entirely through action of the legislature to balance its own budget, with a projected deficit of more than $3 billion, Peterson indicated.

OTHER SUBVENTIONS which Carmel receives from various state and federal sources — exclusive of the $1.1 million state sales tax — come from business inventory taxes, trailer in lieu fees, cigarette taxes, highway carrier fees, and coastal grants.

The preliminary budget which has been prepared in written form for discussion and analysis by the city council and citizens represents a continuation of the existing levels of programs and services, Peterson said.

Specific requests from department heads for additional personnel and programs will be presented in the weeks ahead as the council meets in study sessions to thrash out the final shape of the budget.

Included in the $799,375 expenditure for capital improvements are several items on city administrators' "wish list." These include a request for $50,000 for computers to handle city payrolls and finance, as well as business at Sunset Center.

A $100,000 expenditure is also included for construction of a wall, steps, and walkway on Carmel beach. The project, which has been discussed by both the city council and forestry commission, is intended to control beach and bank erosion and to provide public access to the beach.

Street maintenance is allocated $125,000 in the preliminary budget, a figure which represents only maintenance of existing streets, storm drains and other public works projects but which does not include additional funds for repair of worn streets and installation of needed storm drains.

City Engineer Clayton Neill advised the council in March that more than $500,000 would be needed to completely upgrade, repair and rehabilitate the city's roads and drains.

Also included in the capital outlay portion of the budget is a $65,000 expenditure for the second phase of the planned remodeling of city hall; the first $65,000 increment of the project was budgeted in the 1981-82 fiscal year.

And $15,000 is also included for the purchase of new office furniture and carpeting in conjunction with the remodeling, which brings the total price tag for the entire project to $145,000, said Finance Director James Bajari. First phase of the remodeling, which involves city hall offices, will commence within one month; the second phase involves remodeling of council chambers, Bajari indicated.

The amount budgeted for Harrison Memorial Library is $400,410, less than the $429,145 included in the 1981-82 fiscal year budget. That amount is broken down into $282,590 for employee services and benefits — including $200,785 for salaries — and $115,320 for materials and miscellaneous services.

IN LIEU PARKING funds in the amount of $254,730, which have accumulated since 1972-73, are budgeted for expenditure in the coming fiscal year even though it is not clear yet what type of parking project will be undertaken, Peterson indicated.

"The most probable thing is city participation in the parking project with the Pine Inn," Peterson said. "Those funds must be used for parking but it hasn't been resolved yet what the project will be. We appropriated the funds last year and we don't want to just sit on that money."

A proposal was unveiled in January for city participation with owners of the Pine Inn in a parking facility to be constructed partially underground on parcels bordered by Monte Verde and Lincoln streets and 6th Avenue.

The project would be constructed in conjunction with the planned annex to Harrison Memorial Library, and could afford 97 parking spaces to be divided between the city and the Pine Inn. Preliminary project costs are estimated at $620,000 and the Pine Inn owners have indicated a willingness to provide $300,000.

Although the city may have to dip into general funds or reserves to execute the project, the $254,730 is "within the ball park" for participation, Peterson said.

COUNCILMAN David Maradei questioned the necessity for two more police officers — a detective and a desk officer — as the Carmel police department budget soared close to the $1 million level for 1982-83.

"We're closing in on a $1 million police budget for a town that's one square mile," Maradei said. "This seems to me like an extraordinarily large budget. A couple of mayors I've talked to from other cities consider this laughable compared with the constraints they operate under."

The $20,000 budgeted for aerial mapping would be used to provide topographic maps of the northwestern portion of the city, as well as some unincorporated areas north of city limits, to be used in conjunction with improvements to the storm drain system, Peterson said.

"We would create a topographic map of the area northwest of the city to provide a base map and data for planning, which would reduce engineering costs for whatever drainage work we have done," Peterson said.

Peterson said he plans to meet with representatives of city employee groups this week, but declined to state whether workers had made any formal requests concerning wages, fringe benefits, or working conditions for 1982-83.

Police Chief John McGilvray presented his request for a $26,000-per-year detective and a $20,000 desk-dispatcher to the city council during a budget study session last Thursday.

Even without the additional personnel, the police department is budgeted $907,650, or 20 percent of the total municipal budget — more than any other department or category of expenditure by the city.

Since the police department does not have an officer assigned full-time to investigation, police officers are taken from routine patrol duties whenever there is a need for followup investigation, McGilvray explained.

THIS CAUSES a shortage of officers on patrol and has tended to reduce the clearance rate for some types of crimes in Carmel, the chief explained.

"Matters which should be investigated on a routine basis must often wait considerable periods of time until an officer is available," McGilvray said. "This inadequacy also causes the captain of police to perform the duties of an investigator."

"Of 116 burglaries committed (in Carmel) during the 1981 calendar year, only seven were solved," McGilvray said. "The addition of a full-time detective would hopefully result in much more attention to crime trends, those responsible for committing crime and a much greater degree of service to the community."

The preliminary 1982-83 budget also includes a $500 expenditure for a traffic counter and a $600 expenditure for a noise meter if those devices are required in the future to implement traffic control ordinances, Peterson indicated.

Councilman David Maradei expressed concern over the size of the police department budget at a June 10 study session.

"We're closing in on a $1 million police budget for a town that's one square mile," Maradei said. "This seems to me like an extraordinarily large budget. A couple of mayors I've talked to from other cities consider this laughable compared with the constraints they operate under."

Chief McGilvray said the expenditures for the police department should be considered in relationship not only to the approximate 5,000 residents but also to the many tourists who come to Carmel every year.

"The ratio of officers to the population would be considered high if all we had to deal with was the residential community," McGilvray replied to Councilman Maradei. "But we need to add on the transient population; that brings the ratio down."

City Administrator Doug Peterson pointed out that the basic level of staffing in the police department is three officers on the street at any given hour of the day or night.

"Our business district is much more intense than you would normally find in a village of 5,000," Peterson told the council.

"Traffic is much heavier than normal. There's no question that revenues pull expenditures to some extent."

"The police department presented here is the one the community seems to find satisfactory. If we want to behave like a community that's in serious trouble financially then these numbers can be changed."

rescinding a previous lay-off and a decision to close the doors on Sundays. (Michael R. Gardner photo).

Supervisors may decide library funding puzzle

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

THE CITY-COUNTY library budget puzzle now in its sixth month may finally be resolved when the Monterey County Board of Supervisors meets today (June 17).

Monterey County Administrator Richard Andrews is expected to make a proposal to the supervisors that calls for a cut in county reimbursements of 10 to 20 percent, which means Carmel may lose as much as $60,000.

In addition, Andrews' proposal says county reimbursements may be cut even more contingent on any state allocations for city libraries. In fiscal year 1981-82, Carmel received $30,000 from the state. If that amount is allocated again, the county will reduce its reimbursement by $30,000 Andrews said.

However, even a potential $90,000 cut is less than the $130,000 reduction originally proposed in December by a county consultant.

Under contracts with Monterey Peninsula cities, the board of supervisors has reimbursed libraries for services they provide to non-city resident patrons.

If Andrews' proposal is adopted by supervisors, the library board of trustees will have to take counter measures when it meets at 4 p.m. June 22 at city hall.

One of those steps may be a charge for non-city residents who want to use municipal library services. Or, trustees may completely cease services to county patrons.

Trustees previously announced that if an earlier proposal by a county consultant had been approved, a fee to non-city resident patrons would be assessed. However, that proposal was based on a projected $130,000 cut in county reimbursements.

Asked if a $60,000 cut will still mean a fee, Library Director Peg Richter replied: "I don't know. That is one of the options we have when the board meets."

Andrews and city officials met last week in an attempt to work out a compromise, but the talks were discontinued before a final decision could be reached.

Andrews said he wanted to meet with city officials again before today's board of supervisors session, but further talks were not scheduled as of Tuesday morning.

Andrews repeated his previous position that the county cannot continue to provide the current level of reimbursements.

However, after supervisors rejected a county consultant's plan that would have drastically cut reimbursements, Andrews has agreed to compromise.

In anticipation of the cutbacks, the Carmel library board has laid off the full-time children's librarian and plans to close the library on Sundays and most holidays.

The proposed $400,000 budget for 1982-83 does not include any county reimbursements or state funds, said Miss Richter.

But Andrews said the $100,000 figure is only in a "worst case" situation and that a final reimbursement package may be on the positive side for city libraries.

"My guess is that it ($100,000) is probably accurate if you refer to it as worst case," he said. "It (the cut) won't be as severe as the library consultant originally recommended. Under any formula, Carmel Library incurs the most severe adverse economic impact."

A further complication is the fact that the unofficial deadline for a decision is June 30. That is when the city-county contract for library services expires.

Miss Richter said she is not opposed to further negotiations past the contract expiration date.

"My suggestion is, if they can't get their act together, they should extend the existing contract another quarter (until Sept. 30)," she said. But Miss Richter added that an extension of the contract hinges on the county's willingness to continue reimbursements.

"If we don't see any movement, I don't see how we can continue services," she said. "If we're going to keep talking, I don't see anything wrong with that, but we have to have payment while we're talking."

Andrews added that it is "not unusual" for a contract with the county to expire while negotiations for a new pact continue.

About 47 percent of the patrons of the Carmel library live outside the city limits, Miss Richter said.

Carmel Youth Baseball

By WENDY BANKS

SCHOOL IS OUT for the summer and Carmel Youth Baseball's regular season has come to an end.

The official closing day ceremonies were held Saturday and the All-Star Mustang and Bronco Division players were named. All-Star selection is based upon sportsmanship, ability, and availability to participate on the team during the summer.

Those players selected as Mustang All-Stars are: Braulio De Anda, Scott Gill, Will Griffith, Daniel Kleinbardt, Matt Little, Carlos Moore, Michael Parrish, Russell Peavy, Chris Prieto, Rick Prieto, Andy Rotharmel, Scott Smith, Robbie Takigawa, Adam Vesper, and Aaron Bleisner. Honorary members include: Kevin Winton, Benno Weiner, Erin Saluta, and Steve White.

Players chosen as Bronco All-Stars are: Josh Banks, Beau Brushert, Craig Cox, Bobby Carroll, David Faber, Brett Ledbetter, Mike Little, Ali Monroe, Darren Read, Jeff Roberts, Erik Sincoff, and Paul Wagstaff. Rein Wildschut is an honorary member.

Minor league girls' softball had some exciting games right up to the end. When Carmel Plaza met Electric Light Arcade, it was lights out for the Pacific Grove team, 7-1. Monica Reardon broke open a pretty close game when her home run set up six runs in the fifth inning; she also pitched the win.

Jennifer Pataki had two solid base hits. Straw Hat soundly defeated their opponents 16-1 when 11 of 12 players came up to bat in the fifth inning. Megan Hansen had two triples along with teammates Tyana Saxby, Carolyn Borges, Stephanie Sarkin, Nancy Rubin, and Tracy Schemmel all hitting well. They also won their last game over Rhigello by a forfeit.

Carmel Plaza took a 12-6 game from Righellos with the two youngest members of the team doing exceptionally well. Brandy Brushert had two base hits which brought home one run and Jennifer Pataki stretched her base hit into extra bases which then brought in Ann Marie Lowery. In their last outing Carmel Plaza lost to MPTV 8-13.

Sandy Morris, playing second base, caught some great fly balls to save some crucial runs. Lisa Serrano and Richelle Rudinski also doubled to add to the score. The scoreboard read Straw Hat 6, Herma Smith Curtis 2. Hitting well for Straw Hat were Carolyn Borges, Jennifer Loomis, Tyana Saxby, and Hallie Levy.

Village Inn ended their season on a winning note for major league girls' softball. The final score was 13-11. Tammi Fuller did an excellent job from behind the plate by picking off a runner at third; she also got an extra base hit. Stacey White was very effective from the mound and Karla Palumbo had a home run on errors.

On the Mustang field MotorSports blanked Carmel Insurance 12-0 with Kevin Winton pitching. Michael Parrish, as the very first batter of the day, made a home run totally on errors. Leading hitters were Jerry Ledzinski, Kevin Winton, Rich Macon, and Michael Parrish.

Dick Bruhn took a 12-3 game from Carmel Insurance with Scott Smith working the mound, and two from Danny Kleinbardt for DB; Jason Vogelpohl and Matt Little did the same for CI. Christopher Karachale helped DB by going for three. This game clinched the title for Dick Bruhn.

Bronco league action ended with Nielsen Market posting a 5-2 win over Pine Inn. The winning pitcher was Christian Sutton, who also went three for three. Josh Banks, playing short stop, made all three out in one inning. Adam Green (PI) caught Jason Anzalone's high fly ball. Hitting consistently for PI were Brian Young and David Faber.

LaPlaya, who easily captured first place in the Bronco division, handed Nielsen Market a 23-3 loss. Paul Wagstaff was the winning pitcher and he also doubled. Christian Sutton collected a double for NM while Eric Cederstrom was one of LP leading hitters.

John Roscelli beat Derek Rayne in a close game 8-6. DR rallied in the seventh with the bases loaded, but JR's Beau Brushert got the third out. Beau also had two doubles and went three for four. Ali Monroe doubled and Tom White pitched the win; Jonas Rowe's catch in the field stopped a JR threat earlier in the game.

Carmelo School honors students at special awards ceremony

Carmelo School teachers, staff and parents honored students at a special awards ceremony June 9. About 50 awards in academics, running and most improved student were distributed.

First graders honored were: Marc Colliard, spelling; Rosemary Garrison, handwriting; Arash Lavian and Noah Sherman, math; and Brandon Maggiore, most improved student.

Second graders honored were: Darren Maggiore, science; Vanessa Gulla, reading; Sasha Kauffman, math; Joelle Colliard, spelling; John David Day, language arts; Jeff Saunders, most improved student; and Sasha Kauffman, Tobin Leslie and Dylan Garrison, running.

Third graders honored were: Amy Tarantino, math; Jennifer Lecce, language; Jennifer Powers, reading; Ivan Valdez, spelling; Cody West, social studies; and Simon Trapkus, running. Fourth graders honored were: Ethan Tancredi and Jennifer Fry, math; Alyssa Dunn and Clint Miller, language; Katie Mayers and Shiloh Wootton, reading; Alyssa Dunn and Koren Zanides, spelling; Garrett Morris and Nancy Mellos, social studies; Jessica Westcott, science; Scott Quilty, running; and Paisley Shopbell and Ariane Sanders, most improved students.

Fifth graders honored were: Cynthia Powers, language, math, social studies and reading; Kari Bernardi, science and spelling; Tiffany Morton, most improved student; and Joey Suwada and Christian Nagai, running.

MEETING CANCELLED

The Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee meeting tonight (June 17) has been cancelled and is rescheduled for July 8.

The committee is expected to discuss the land use element of the proposed revised Carmel general plan.

OUR APPLAUSE to Scott Smith, Danny Kleinbart, Andy Rotharmel, Aaron Bleisner, Chris Karachale, William Stott, Jeremy Alonzo, Jacob Goldman, Clint Miller, Alysia Ogden, Jonathan Shoemaker, and Benedict Jones — the ball players; and to Alan H. Smith, Manager, and Jerry Rotharmel, and Todd Bleisner — the Coaches.

Library annex

BOARD TREASURER Walter Gorey agreed: "The need has been apparent ever since I've been a member of the board. Naturally we are not going to let the current stringencies curtail our long-term plans."

The three trustees present (Pat Faul and Steve Crouch were absent) agreed that they must continue with plans for the annex, but did not reach a consensus on what collections can be moved to the new site and how it can be staffed.

Trustees said it may be "financially desirable" to build a one-story structure, but to construct it in such a way that a second story can be added later.

Unsure of the costs versus benefits of waiting to add a second story, trustees asked Miss Richter to contact annex architect Don Goodhue for more information.

But when it came to which collections would be moved to the new site, trustees were caught in a financial dilemma.

Miss Richter said to save money, the annex should house collections and services that are not in constant use. The annex could then be closed evenings and weekends without too much inconvenience to the public.

But the problem is that those kinds of uses, such as storage and technical services, do not take up a lot of space in the present library.

"What we need is space, but we must also be wary of costs," she said.

Miss Richter explained that the annex will require two staff members at all times when open. If a large collection, such as reference or non-fiction, is moved to the annex, it would cost more in staff time because the annex would have to keep the same hours as those kept by the library.

Trustees appeared to endorse the idea of moving the reference department over to the annex. Another suggestion was to have the children's services in the annex.

"I think the reference department would be logical. I would make it my number one priority," said Gorey.

But Miss Richter added that the reference section is popular and many people who want to do research need to use the library at night.

"We would have to keep it open the same hours," she said.

TRUSTEE Bernard Anderson suggested that the city could be approached to help pay for the additional staff costs.

Trustees suggested that foundations could also be approached to help fund the annex.

The Tor House Foundation, which has proposed a "Robinson Jeffers Room" for the annex, has already offered its help to obtain grants for the library.

Although no official action was taken, trustees agreed that a room for Jeffers' manuscripts and books will probably be included in the annex plans. The room will also include space for other displays.

At the conclusion of the study session, trustees asked Miss Richter to prepare a new report on the annex, which is expected to be presented at the July board meeting.

Boy Scout Troop 127 completes activities

Boy Scout Troop 127 has completed its 1981-82 year, including a 24-mile hike from Chews Ridge to Big Sur and a Court of Honor in May.

Joel Avila was presented his Eagle Scout award, and senior patrol leader David Wirtz announced that the troop had just won over-all first place in the May Cam-porée competition at Fort Ord.

From July 11-17, members of Troop 127 will be at Camp Pico Blanco. The troop is sponsored by the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club, and meets Monday nights at St. Dunstan's Church in mid-Valley. New members are welcome. For further information, call 625-1947.

More Carmel River storage needed to preserve steelhead, report says

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE HUMAN population is not the only one which will be profoundly affected by the outcome of the debate over another dam on the upper Carmel River.

To present and future residents of the Monterey Peninsula, the Carmel River Aquifer is the major source of drinking water. But to the thousands of steelhead which migrate annually, the river is "home."

Added to the already-complicated debate over the politics and economics of construction of another dam on the Carmel River is a sobering bit of scientific advice for which the district paid $90,000:

Unless some kind of additional storage for Carmel River water is provided, the steelhead population will be all but wiped out.

That was the core of a report to the district board of directors by D.W. Kelley & Associates, aquatic biology consultants hired by the district to study the steelhead fisheries on the Carmel River.

Specifically, Kelley was asked to evaluate the effect of the major water augmentation projects under consideration by the district upon the steelhead population, and to suggest means to satisfy state Department of Fish and Game requirements to preserve the fisheries if another dam is built.

Cost of fishery mitigation measures which might be undertaken by the district would have to be added to the cost of any type of dam project — if approved by voters.

Most recent estimate of construction cost for a dam with 27,000 acre foot storage capacity is $46 million in 1982 dollars, which would require approval of a $77.5 million bond issue to finance construction in 1986, according to another report from Converse Consultants.

And the cost of additional measures to preserve the steelhead fisheries has ranged as high as $10 million, in estimates prepared by the same consultant. The exact cost figures for various alternatives suggested by D.W. Kelley would have to be computed after the district decides which project it wishes to pursue, said manager Bruce Buel.

But there is one inescapable conclusion in the Kelley report:

"If no project is built and California-American Water Co. (Cal-Am) annual demand for Carmel River basin water is increased to presently authorized levels and no new efforts are made to protect the river or the steelhead, the steelhead run will decline and be reduced to remnant levels of a few hundred fish just as it has been in the Ventura and other streams to the south."

THE EXACT size of the steelhead fishery on the Carmel River is not known, but estimates range from 1,350 adults counted migrating through the San Clemente fish ladder in 1965, to as few as 94 in 1972.

The Carmel River and the San Lorenzo

STEELHEAD FISHERMEN flock to a promising spot near Robinson Canyon bridge during steelhead season, as the adult fish negotiate their annual migration up the Carmel River to their spawning grounds. (Alan McEwen photo).

River are "the two largest winter steelhead fisheries along California's central coast," according to the Kelley report.

The good news in the Kelley report is that a different operational model for Carmel River water resources may preserve the steelhead fisheries without construction of another dam, provided it is combined with a vigorous program to restore the river channel.

Under current operations by Cal-Am Water Co., a large portion of the water supply is taken directly from the 1,200 ac. ft. San Clemente reservoir, but the district has proposed a steady, year-round release of water into the channel and withdrawal of water in the lower Carmel Valley.

Although the feasibility of this approach to maintenance of the steelhead fishery is clearly labelled as tentative in the Kelley report, it could succeed in combination with a proposed $150,000-per-year program to stabilize river banks by replanting of vegetation.

"If no project is built and the Cal-Am demand from the Carmel River basin increases and major changes in the operation are made to protect the river and the steelhead resource, we believe it may be possible to maintain the runs at near present levels and increase the Carmel River and aquifer demand up to 16,200 ac. ft. per year," the Kelley report indicated.

This would be a possibility only "if most of the direct diversion from San Clemente reservoir ceased and the stored water were released instead into the stream where it could be recaptured in the aquifers below. This would have to be combined with successful restoration of the riparian vegetation along the lower Carmel River."

Among the alternatives examined in the Kelley report, the 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir at the San Clemente site "could restore much of the lower Carmel River as an attractive stream with a healthy and vigorous riparian corridor and enhance the steelhead run over present levels," Kelley concluded.

A proposal to construct two new off-channel dams with combined storage capacity of 14,000 ac. ft. offers dubious benefits to the steelhead, according to the Kelley report. "There is not enough information on this alternative to judge how much water it could produce or whether it would fully protect the steelhead," Kelley stated.

"IT HAS THE ADVANTAGE of damaging only a small amount of upstream rearing habitat but it may not provide enough water to enhance the lower river as well as the (27,000 ac. ft. reservoir) alternative."

Adequate stream flows are essential during January, February, and March when most adult steelhead begin their upstream migration in the Carmel River. Once they enter the river from Carmel Bay, successful spawning requires the right blend of temperature, channel shade, and bottom gravel, Kelley noted.

"Some fish spawn below San Clemente dam but the Department of Fish and Game biologists believe that most climb the fish ladder and pass through San Clemente reservoir to spawn in its tributaries, in the 5.5-mile reach between the reservoir and Los Padres dam, or above the Los Padres reservoir," the Kelley report stated.

Steelhead migrate upstream to the San Clemente dam and then pass over the fish ladder to enter the reservoir; some which migrate as far upstream as the Los Padres dam are trapped and trucked to the reservoir by Cal-Am each year.

Female steelhead dig shallow depressions in gravel on the bottom of the stream where they deposit the eggs; after fertilization by the male, the female continues digging just upstream to permit gravel to be carried downstream to cover the eggs.

Adult steelhead return to the ocean after they spawn. Their eggs incubate in the nest for four to eight weeks; the young steelhead emerge a week or two after they hatch and live in cooler waters for one to three years before they return to the sea to start the cycle again.

Because the height of a proposed dam with 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity would be about 250 feet, a fish ladder might not be feasible, Kelley concluded.

A more economical alternative would be to divert steelhead as they migrate upstream by a barrier dam across the river into a shorter fish ladder, and from there into a holding pen where the fish could be collected and trucked into the reservoir, the Kelley report indicated.

The two ways to accommodate downstream migration of steelhead smolts are to either provide adequate flows over the dam spillway or to operate a collection and transport system to pass fish through the dam whenever the reservoir is not spilling, Kelley said.

Further studies are needed to determine the cost of various types of fish collectors to carry the steelhead smolts downstream, the consultant recommended. Furthermore, an aeration system would be needed in a 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir with an initial cost of $150,000 and annual operations and maintenance costs of $30,000, Kelley said in his report.

SMALL FRY, or fingerlings about one year old, often become trapped in pools along the Carmel River as its flows cease, and fall prey to illegal fishermen or predators. Some citizen groups, with the permission of state fish and game officials, net the little steelhead (below), place them in containers (left) and transport them to safer reaches of the river. The state Department of Fish and Game, however, stopped "rescuing" steelhead in the 1960s because the numbers of fish saved were minimal, according to Warden Mike Johnson of the Monterey division. (Alan McEwen photos.)

Consultant recommends zone to limit visitor businesses

TO ENSURE that the residential character of Carmel is preserved, the city may want to adopt a revised general plan that creates a special neighborhood commercial zone, limits visitor-oriented businesses and regulates new development, says the draft land use element prepared by city consultant Earth Metrics.

The proposed land use element will be reviewed by the Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee when it meets at 7:30 p.m. July 8 at city hall.

In its draft element, Earth Metrics recommends several alternatives to land use policies that the committee may want to incorporate into the revision of the 1973 general plan.

"The alternatives presented should be evaluated in view of the community's efforts to re-establish residentially-oriented uses in areas convenient to residents that will provide essential goods and services, and at the same time maintain the strong economic base associated with the existing visitor oriented businesses," said Earth Metrics in the draft element report.

"Some residents have indicated that they travel outside the community for these essential goods and services because of several factors including: lack of residentially-oriented establishments within the commercial district; lack of parking near existing retail and service establishments (downtown parking is most often used by visitors); downtown area traffic congestion discourages residents from venturing downtown; and high land values and high rents contributing to land uses that offer tourist-oriented services and higher priced goods for larger volumes of visitor patrons rather than offering more resident-serving goods."

To combat the problems, Earth Metrics suggests that the city consider several policies that will encourage residentially-oriented businesses:

Staff Players plan auditions

Musical auditions for the Staff Players production of Jacques Brel Is Alive... are scheduled for Saturdays, June 19 and 26. The production will be directed by James Nisbet Clark. Marcia Gambrell Hovick of Staff Players will produce the play.

Clark, the original New York and world wide production manager/light designer for Jacques Brel Is Alive..., will adapt the New York concept to the Forest Theater main stage. The play will open in early September and will run for six weekends.

For an audition appointment, phone 449-7067 or 624-1531.

SEE OIL SLICK?
CALL (800) 852-7530

If you should be walking or picnicking on the beach or driving along the beautiful shoreline of the Monterey Peninsula and see what appears to be an oil slick, get quick environmental action by calling the California Office of Emergency Services. The toll-free number, day or night, is (800) 852-7530.

- Establish a commercial zone for neighborhood businesses only. But, because of the size of Carmel, there is probably not room for a separate zone. Plus, the mixture of businesses, is "a key factor in Carmel's character," Earth Metrics said.

- Adopt incentives for residentially-oriented businesses. The city could establish what Earth Metrics calls a "neighborhood commercial overlay zone within existing districts" and zoning variances could be granted to encourage specific businesses. Some of the incentives suggested by Earth Metrics include reduced parking requirements, increased square footage or increased lot coverage.

- The general plan could include provisions that will allow an intense commercial district in the downtown core but keep stringent control over businesses near the residential zones.

- The city should adopt "like" land use regulations that will prohibit a proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses, such as gift shops, art galleries and restaurants.

- An ordinance should be adopted that limits "secondary" uses by businesses. Earth Metrics said some business licenses are obtained for one service, but its "secondary" use creates most of the income. "Certain secondary uses may not be considered compatible uses. This pattern in stores has an influence on the character and quality of the community," the consultant said.

- The city should re-evaluate the C1-S zone, which is a district that separates the central commercial zone from the residential zone. A neighborhood business zone could be created, or the city may want to change the zone to just allow residential use.

- The city should adopt a residential preservation program that limits size of structures, continue its tree-planting and preservation program, and discourage concrete curbs and sidewalks.

Carmel River School celebrates end of school year with assembly

Carmel River School parents, staff and students marked the end of the term with a special fifth grade recognition assembly June 10.

The assembly began with a procession of fifth graders, who filed into the cafeteria as the band, under the direction of teacher William Purdy, played "Pomp and Circumstance."

The pledge of allegiance was led by fifth grade scouts Clyde Klaumann, Jason Lande, Billy Moritz, Naomi Kading and Andrea Shephard. It was followed by a trumpet solo of "America" by Abdon Cornejo.

The opening remarks were presented by Marcy Murray, president of the Parent-Faculty Club; and Kay Goines, kindergarten teacher.

Two musical duets were then performed by Cindy Nishiguchi and Sunny Scollan, and Billy Moritz and Russell Peavey.

Principal Vance Frasier then introduced the teachers and awarded certificates to member of the fifth grade class.

Appreciation certificates were presented to fifth grade teachers Sharron Douglas, Patrick Allan, Arlene Rice, Purdy and Frasier from their students. Students who made the presentations were Eric Cederstrom, David Kingsley, Brandon Kirsch, Rebecca Slate and Dawn Souza.

A reception followed.

Highlights from U.S. Open tourneys

BEST COMEBACKS

Some of the finest moments in golf history were recorded when the winners came roaring back after lagging behind. The best comeback in U.S. Open history:

18 Holes — Jack Fleck in 1955 was nine strokes off the pace and came back to win.

36 Holes — Lou Graham in 1975 was 11 strokes behind.

54 Holes — Arnold Palmer in 1960 was seven strokes behind. John Miller in 1973 was six strokes behind. Gene Sarazen was seven strokes in arrears with 28 holes to play in second nine of the morning round and a 66 on the afternoon round to complete the 28 holes in 100 strokes and win by three.

63 Holes — Billy Casper was seven strokes behind Arnold Palmer with nine holes to play in 1966. Casper shot 32 on the incoming nine, Palmer shot 39.

POOREST START, WORST FINISH

The all-time high for the poorest start by a champion was the 84 recorded in the first round by Horace Rawlins in 1895. The post World War II high is 76 by Ben Hogan in 1951 and Jack Fleck in 1955.

Champions who managed to survive despite terrible finishes were Fred Herd, the all-time worst-finisher-champion, who posted an 84 in the final round in 1898. The post World War II high is the 75 carded by Cary Middlecoff in 1949.

MOST VICTORIES

Four men have won the U.S. Open Championship four times: Willie Anderson (1901-03-04-05), Robert T. Jones, Jr. (1923-26-29-30), Ben Hogan (1948-50-51-53), Jack Nicklaus (1962-67-72-80).

Council speeds zoning policy for Carmel Woods

By ROBERT MISKIMON

CARMEL CITY COUNCIL members have decided to settle for what might be more accurately called post-zoning, rather than pre-zoning, of the Carmel Woods area proposed for annexation.

The city council adopted a set of general policy statements on the type of zoning which could be expected if the 170-acre area northwest of Carmel is annexed to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

And the whole matter was referred to the planning commission for study and public hearings, none of which is expected to occur before annexation either succeeds or fails.

Normally, pre-zoning of an area proposed for annexation to a city is completed before the annexation process. But City Administrator Douglas Peterson told the council there isn't time for formal pre-zoning of the Carmel Woods area before annexation.

"Due to the statutory time schedules provided for advertising and public hearings, as well as the planning commission will find necessary for their studies and consideration, completion of a regular pre-zoning process prior to the date of the protest hearing or the election does not appear to be realistic," Peterson informed the council in a memorandum.

The city council has tentatively scheduled a protest hearing on annexation for July 26. That hearing must be held by state law if the Local Agency Formation Commission approves annexation at its June 22 meeting.

If 25 to 50 percent of the 700 registered voters in Carmel Woods protests the annexation, the issue must go to voters in the Nov. 2 election. If more than 50 percent protest, annexation fails. If fewer than 25 percent protest, annexation is approved without election.

"Based upon the issues involved, it seems impossible to meet the first date (July 26) and it is probably unrealistic to expect that all of the required discussions would be completed prior to the November date," Peterson said.

Instead Peterson recommended, and the council agreed by a 4-0 vote, to defer planning commission public hearings on zoning of the Carmel Woods area until it is known whether annexation succeeds. Any zoning of the area should be coordinated with the current update of the 1973 Carmel general plan, Peterson said.

General policy statements on probable zoning of the Carmel Woods area drafted by Peterson and approved by the council would:

- Prohibit transient occupancy uses within the R-1 residential district.
- Prohibit timesharing uses, although the one already approved by the county on Guadalupe Street would probably have to amortized out of existence.
- Retain existing R-1 residential zoning and require "special treatment" for the R-2 zones.
- Tighten controls over second units on residential properties by requiring use permits for the installation of additional plumbing fixtures in secondary buildings located on one building site.
- Extend interaccessibility requirements for newly-created structures now in effect in Carmel. Those requirements may be changed, Peterson noted, when "second kitchen" regulations are developed for the entire city.
- Require review of fence height limits in Carmel Woods and possible reduction to conform with the four-foot limit in Carmel.
- Require design study of all structures in Carmel Woods which exceed 18 feet — the Carmel height limit — or two stories.
- Compel "considerable study by the planning commission" of differences between city and county regulations on building setback and lot coverage limitations.
- Require examination of zoning for the Carmel Woods site, which has been closed by the Carmel Unified School District because of declining enrollment.

How golfers qualify for a spot at Open

ALL STARTERS will play in the first and second 18-hole rounds on Thursday and Friday, June 17-18. The 60 lowest scorers and any tying for 60th place or anyone within 10 strokes of the leader for the first 36 holes are eligible for the third and fourth 18-hole rounds on Saturday and Sunday, June 19-20.

The champion is the player with the lowest score for 72 holes. In case of a tie, it will be played off at 18 holes stroke play on Monday, June 21. If this playoff results in a tie, the tied players will immediately continue to play off hole by hole until the winner is determined.

ONE HUNDRED fifty-three amateur and professional players are eligible for the 1982 U.S. Open Championship. The majority earn their places through two successive trials during the spring: first in 36-hole local qualifying rounds in May; secondly, in 36-hole sectional qualifying championships in June.

In local qualifying rounds, there is a broad range of exemptions. These include all former U.S. Open, U.S. Amateur, PGA and British Open Champions; members of the latest USGA Walker Cup Team (1981) and the latest USGA World Amateur Team (1980) and the latest Ryder Cup Teams of the United States and Great Britain-Europe (1981); current Open Champions of countries represented in the World Amateur Golf Council as of the closing date of entries (April 28, 1982); winners of major tournaments (except four-ball events) co-sponsored or approved by the PGA Tour and others which entitle a player to a year of eligibility for Tour events for one year ending immediately before the closing of Open entries (April 28);

Also, the 30 lowest scorers and any tying for 30th place in the 1981 PGA Championship; the 100 leaders on the PGA Tour official money-winners list for the calendar year 1981; the 30 leaders on the 1982 PGA Tour official money-winners list from Jan. 1 until the close of Open entries (April 28); the British Amateur Champion of the preceding year (1981); the PGA Club Professional Champion of the preceding year (1981); and the head professional of Pebble Beach Golf Links, the club entertaining the Championship proper.

After local qualifying, 600 entrants, excluding those exempt from all qualifying, are eligible for sectional qualifying championships. In the sectional qualifying championships, exemptions are limited to the winners of the last five U.S. Opens (1977-81); the 15 lowest scorers and those tying for 15th place in the 1981 U.S. Open; winners of the last five PGA Championships (1977-81); winners of the last five British Opens (1977-81); winners of the last five Masters Tournaments (1978-82); the 1981 U.S. Amateur Champion; the 1982 Tournament Players Champion;

Also, the 1981 U.S. Senior Open Champion; players in first place in each of the following for the preceding year: Continental order of merit, South African order of merit, Australian order of merit, Japan order of merit and Asian Golf Circuit; 30 leaders on the 1981 PGA Tour official money-winners list; 10 leaders on the 1982 PGA Tour official money-winners list from Jan. 1 until the close of Open entries (April 28).

Additionally, the USGA reserves the right to issue a maximum of three special exemptions from qualifying. The field would be increased to accommodate the exempted players.

The winner receives a gold medal, custody of the Championship Cup for the ensuing year and, if a professional, a money prize of $60,000. Every professional who competes will receive a money prize from a total purse of approximately $375,000. For amateurs completing 72 holes, the lowest scorer will receive a gold medal; the second lowest scorer, a silver medal; all others receive bronze medals. Additionally, money prizes will be awarded to professionals in sectional qualifying championships.

14 golfers won both U.S. and British Opens

Fourteen players were able to win both the United States and British Opens.

There are: Ted Tay of England (1920 U.S. Open, 1912 British Open); Harry Vardon of England (1900 U.S. Open, 1896-98-99, 1903-11-14 British Opens); Jim Barnes (1921 U.S. Open, 1925 British Open); Walter Hagen (1914-19 U.S. Opens, 1922-24-28-29 British Opens); Robert T. Jones Jr. (1923-26-29-30 U.S. Opens, 1926-27-30 British Opens);

Tommy Armour (1927 U.S. Open, 1931 British Open); Gene Sarazen (1922-32 U.S. Opens, 1932 British Open); Ben Hogan

(1948-50-51-53 U.S. Opens, 1953 British Open); Arnold Palmer (1960 U.S. Open, 1961-62 British Opens); Gary Player of South Africa (1965 U.S. Open, 1959-68-74 British Opens);

Jack Nicklaus (1962-67-72-80 U.S. Opens, 1966-70-78 British Opens); Tony Jacklin of England (1970 U.S. Open, 1969 British Open); Lee Trevino (1968-71 U.S. Opens, 1971-72 British Opens); and John Miller (1973 U.S. Open, 1976 British Open).

Jones in 1930, Sarazen in 1932, Hogan in 1953 and Trevino in 1971 are the only golfers to win both in the same year.

Who won amateur and pro titles?

Ten players have managed to win both U.S.G.A. Open and Amateur Championships.

They are: Francis Ouimet (1914 Open, 1913-31 Amateurs); Jerome D. Travers (1915 Open, 1907-08-12-13 Amateurs); Charles Evans Jr. (1916 Open, 1916-20 Amateurs); Robert T. Jones Jr. (1923-26-29-30 Opens, 1924-25-27-28-30 Amateurs); John Goodman (1933 Open, 1937 Amateur);

Lawson Little (1940 Open, 1934-35 Amateurs); Arnold Palmer (1960 Open, 1954 Amateur); Gene Littler (1961 Open, 1953 Amateur); Jack Nicklaus (1962-67-72-80 Opens, 1959-61 Amateurs); and Jerry Pate (1976 Open, 1974 Amateur).

Evans in 1916 and Jones in 1930 are the only golfers to win both in the same year.

Graham-Burns duel highlighted 1981

David Graham, 35, became the first Australian to win the Open Championship, shooting 273, seven under par, over the East Course of the Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa. in the 1981 Open.

Graham's final round 67, three under par, was one of the finest ever played in the Open. It bought him from three strokes behind 54-hole leader George Burns when the fourth round began to three strokes ahead when the Championship ended.

His 273 total brought him to within one stroke of the Open record for 72 holes, set at 272 a year earlier by four-time Open Champion Jack Nicklaus at the Baltusrol Golf Club. Graham finished with rounds of 68-68-70-67-273.

Burns finished in a tie for second place with Bill Rogers at 276. John Cook and John Schroeder tied for fourth place at 279, the only other players to break par for the 72 holes. Five players, including Nicklaus, finished at even-par 280.

The first round lead belonged to Jim Thorpe, a journeyman professional, with a four-under-par 66. Alone at 67 was J. C. Snead, who had tied for second in the 1978 Open.

Graham was tied for third place with four others at 68. They were John Cook, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Jack Renner and Bob Ackerman, a club professional. Burns was among those at 69, along with Nicklaus and John Miller, the 1973 Champion. Rogers was at even-par 70 in a group that included Ben Crenshaw and amateur Joe Rasett.

In the second round, Burns took the lead with a 66 of his own, giving 135 for 36 holes, five under par. Graham shot another 68 and was within one stroke of Burns at 136.

The highlight of his round came at the 18th hole, a par-4 of 458 yards, where he almost had a disaster. He pulled his tee shot well into the left rough where the grass had been so trampled by the gallery that the ball almost rolled onto a service road and out of bounds. From there he played a marvelous 3-iron that hooked nicely under low-hanging tree branches and stopped 15 feet from the hole. He got down in two putts for his 68.

Nicklaus and Tommy Valentine also had 68s and were at 137. Rogers kept pace with a 68 of his own and was at 138. Thorpe, the first-round leader, slipped to a 73 but was still only four strokes behind Burns at 139.

The 36-hole cut fell at 147, only one stroke lower than it was 10 years earlier at Merion. Lee Trevino, who won that Open, missed the cut this time. An overnight rain before the third round made the greens softer and very receptive to approach shots.

Burns added a 68, his third consecutive round under par, and increased his lead from one stroke to three over Graham, who shot 70. Burns had 203 for three rounds, setting an Open record for 54 holes. Graham remained in second place at 206. Rogers, with a 69, was another stroke back at 207. Nicklaus, Rodriguez and Schroeder were five back at 208.

The day produced the low round of the Championship — a 64, six under par, by Ben Crenshaw. It put him only six strokes behind at 209.

The final round was really a duel between Graham and Burns, although Rogers remained a threat all day. Graham put the heat on Burns right away with birdies on the first row holes to close within one stroke.

Graham caught up at the fourth hole when Burns made a bogey 6. Graham gave back the stroke with a three-putt bogey on the fifth and that's how the contest remained until the 10th, a short par 4. Burns' pitch shot found the front bunker. He came out 15 feet from the hole and took two putts for a bogey. Burns, who made bogey at the final hole.

Graham parred in from the 16th hole for a three-stroke victory. His putt from 18 feet on the final hole to tie the Open scoring record hit the cup and stayed out.

Rasett, the low amateur with a 294 total, received a gold medal.

Prize money reached a record $361,730, with $346,730 awarded in the Championship proper and $15,000 in the Sectional Qualifying Championships.

The USGA received a record 4,946 entries in 1978. More than 78,000 spectators attended the Open Championship at Merion.

Sidelights of past U.S. Open tournaments

HOLES IN ONE

Records of holes-in-one in the early years of the Open Championship are not available. In the 1956 Open at Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester, N.Y., Bobby Kuntz made one on the 142-yard 11th hole. Sixteen years went by before another ace was recorded.

In the 1972 Open at Pebble Beach, Jerry McGee and Bobby Mitchell both scored holes-in-one on the 180-yard 5th hole; McGee in the third round and Mitchell in the final round.

It has been estimated that approximately 26,434 tee shots were hit to par-3 holes during Open Championships between Kuntz' ace and McGee's.

In 1975, Pat Fitzsimons made one on the 187-yard 2nd hole, less than 40 minutes after the field teed off in the first day's play. (This is believed to be the earliest hole-in-one in Open history.) Since then, Bobby Wadkins and Tom Weiskopf made holes-in-one in 1978 at Cherry Hills Country Club in Englewood, Colo.; Gary Player did it in 1979 at Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio; and Tom Watson in 1980 at the Baltusrol Golf Club in Springfield, N. J.

WINNERS WHO LED ALL THE WAY

Only four U.S. Open Champions led after every round. Walter Hagen in 1914, Jim Barnes in 1921, Ben Hogan in 1953 and Tony Jacklin in 1970. Seven other champions have led or were in a tie all the way — Willie Anderson in 1903, Alex Smith in 1906, Charles Evans, Jr., in 1916, Tommy Bolt in 1958, Jack Nicklaus in 1972 and 1980, and Hubert Green in 1977.

FOREIGN WINNERS

David Graham, of Australia, became the 20th foreign-born winner in 1981. However, 16 of the 20 had already emigrated to the United States before they won. The four overseas champions were Harry Vardon of England in 1900, Ted Ray of England in 1920, Gary Player of South Africa in 1965, and Tony Jacklin of England in 1970. Graham is the first foreign-born champion since Jacklin.

MOST OPENS COMPLETED

Walter Hagen played through 22 successive Opens from 1913 to 1936 (no Championships 1917-18 because of World War I). Gene Sarazen also played through 22 successive Opens from 1920 to 1941.

More recently, Gary Player played through 22 successive Opens from 1958 to 1979. The longest active streak belongs to Jack Nicklaus, who has played through 18 successive Opens since 1964.

Others have played through as many as 27 Opens, completing 72 holes, but not consecutively. Sam Snead played through 27 Opens between 1937 and 1973. In his entire career, Gene Sarazen played through 26 Opens.

WINNER OF OPEN, AMATEUR & SENIOR TOURNAMENTS

Arnold Palmer is the only golfer to win all three USGA titles — the Open, in 1960; the Amateur in 1954; and the Senior Open in 1981.

Palmer is only the second golfer to win three different USGA championships. The first was JoAnne Carner, who won one Girls' Junior (1956), five Women's Amateurs (1957-60-62-66-68) and two Women's Opens (1971-76).

Palmer's 27-year span between USGA championships is second only to the 32 years between Dorothy Porter's 1949 Women's Amateur and 1981 Senior Women's Amateur titles.

DOCENTS HOLD LUNCHEON

The annual salad luncheon of the Docent Council, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, was held June 6 at the home of Joanne Honegger, Scenic Drive, Carmel.

The order of business was the culmination of a busy and productive year of volunteer work at the museum and the welcoming of new provisional docents.

Blanche Cannon, chairwoman of the Council, welcomed these provisional docents who completed orientation sessions in May: Betty Kolb, Betty Jane Ozier, Judy Page and Marnie Shooter of Carmel; Trulee Ricketts of Carmel Valley; Linda L. Richards of Fort Ord; Joan Charleson, Stephen R. Harris and Dorothy C. Harrison of Pebble Beach; Jamie Sue Brooks and Elizabeth Wooley of Pacific Grove; Dorothy Berquist, Eleanor Russell, Carol Steffes, Frances L. Stone and Frances Sterling of Monterey.

There were 36 docents who enjoyed the sitdown salad luncheon.

ALEXANDER LALLOS IS WELCOMED

Mr. and Mrs. Euripides Fotios Lallos, of Carmel, announce the birth of their son, Alexander Santo Lallos, on May 24. The proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seracusa of Carmel Valley, and Mr. Fotios Lallos of Fort Lee, N.J. Alexander was also welcomed into this world by his two-year-old sister Francesca and his half-sisters Vicotia and Alexa of Los Altos.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 82-9

AN ORDINANCE REQUIRING TREE TRIMMING BUSINESSES TO MAINTAIN PUBLIC LIABILITY INSURANCE IN AMOUNT SPECIFIED FROM TIME TO TIME BY CITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES
ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Section 305.70 of Division 2 of Part III of the Municipal Code is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

305.70 TREE SERVICES. For every person, firm or corporation, whose business is in whole or in part that of trimming or removing trees, a business license shall not be issued until the application for the license has:

a. furnished proof of the existence of worker's compensation insurance coverage;

b. furnished proof of the existence of personal injury and property damage public liability insurance coverage which is primary over any other valid or collectible insurance the City may have, the face amount of which shall be established from time to time by City Council Resolution; and

c. certified intent to adhere to the standards specified in the City's forest practices manual.

Section 2. If any part of this Ordinance, even as small as a word or phrase, is found unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section 3. Repeal. Ordinance No. 80-5 adopted May 5, 1980 is repealed.

Section 4. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

Introduced on the 20th day of April, 1982.

Leash laws mean a change in life style

By JUDITH A. EISNER

THE PASSING of a leash law for the residential areas of Carmel means a change of life style for the canines who live there and imposes certain necessary modifications on their property-owning masters.

(Our Carmel Valley readers should also be aware that there is a leash law for Carmel Valley, although it is unincorporated county territory.)

The need for a leash law should be apparent. Population density is one factor in residential Carmel. Irresponsible pet owners are probably most directly the cause of enforcing restrictions. Dogs roaming at large, unsupervised, often in groups, constitute a real menace. They threaten children, bikers, joggers and just about anyone out for a stroll. Their barking may be merely bluff, but it can terrify a person and the dog then "picks up" on the fear and may actually bite.

Fouling lawns and gardens is another constant problem. Your neighbor's roses may be one of the most important things in her life and watching a dog urinate on them makes her blood boil. Lazy pet owners often turn their dogs loose beyond their own yards to avoid having to clean up after them — not really fair play.

Allowing dogs to run loose is also dangerous to their health and well-being. The auto is a constant threat; being stolen is another real concern. And the possibility of a dog being accidentally or deliberately poisoned is a real danger.

SOME YEARS AGO, there was a long and dreadful episode of dog-poisoning in Carmel Valley. Someone had reached his or her limit and was setting out hamburger laden with strychnine. Many of the dogs who routinely ran loose came upon this poisoned bait and ate it. A number died. Prompt and determined veterinary attention saved several others.

It gradually dawned upon local dog owners that whoever was guilty of the poisonings (the person was never caught) was plainly saying "Keep your dogs at home." Whenever poisonings occur, residents become temporarily frightened for their dogs' safety and keep them at home — for a while. When nothing happens, they become lax and let the dogs run — and the poisoner strikes again. Obviously, a leash law precludes this problem if it is enforced and observed.

Although veterinarians can often save a dog's life after it has ingested poison, the treatment is prolonged and costly. It is not something you would wish on a beloved pet. It is also true that owners have no guarantee they will discover a poisoned dog before it has died. Strychnine works by attacking the nervous system and paralyzing certain muscles. These "inhibitor" muscles serve to keep other muscles of the body from contracting. Under the effect of the poison, the inhibiting effect is destroyed, which leads to the characteristic rigidity and flexed hind legs and spine of the victims. Death usually occurs when the diaphragm muscle is paralyzed, rendering the dog unable to breathe. It is certainly not a pleasant way to die.

If you find a poisoned pet, it must be rushed to a veterinarian. The treatment consists of thoroughly pumping its stomach and then adding an absorptive charcoal substance. The animal is kept heavily sedated for a day or more while it recovers.

Aside from the immediate pain and terror any poisoned animal feels there is the ordeal of having its life saved. If you've ever had your stomach pumped, you understand. Until the animal is pronounced "in the clear," it must be watched and treated on a round-the-clock basis. If nothing else can convince dog owners to protect pets, the necessarily astronomical vet bills for this life-saving treatment should!

How, THEN, do you confine your dogs? Certainly, if your yard is not stoutly and completely fenced, keeping a dog permanently chained is not an ideal solution. We sympathize with people who cannot afford to fence their entire property, or who may be renting a home and do not want to fence property that is not their own.

There are relatively inexpensive methods of confining a dog. We would much rather chain a dog for part of the day than have him running loose.

There are reel-type dog tethers that enable you to stake out a dog. These reels automatically dole out and rewind the line so the dog cannot become tangled around trees or bushes. It gives the dog a certain controlled amount of freedom while confining him to a 20 or 30-foot radius. The tethers come with a metal stake that can be driven securely into the ground.

Or you can easily and inexpensively rig up an aerial line between two handy trees or two fence posts. This could be a high-test steel cable simply attached to the two poles. A dog chain is clipped to the cable so it can run back and forth the length of it. Snap the other end of the chain to a sturdy leather, non-choke collar and your dog again has freedom of movement while being restrained in one area.

You can buy or build a kennel run for your dog which can be as small as four by six feet or as large as you like, have space for or can afford. Portable and collapsible dog runs are available through pet shops and from retail outlet including Sears. The chain link fencing panels last a lifetime and can be enlarged at a future date. Although not inexpensive, they are reasonable when compared with the cost of fencing your yard.

If these runs are too expensive, you can build a relatively secure dog run using steel fence posts and field fencing wire (non-barbed) that is available in various heights and by the foot, yard or roll. Any lumber yard can help you.

THE PROBLEM diminishes once dog owners believe their dogs do not need to run loose. Sensible confinement coupled with love, attention and planned exercise are all any dog needs.

Father Farrell's wisdom

The real prize in life

I go to the cinema about once a year. Last month, on the recommendation of the Monterey Peninsula Ministerial Association, I went to see the English picture Chariots of Fire. I presumed it would be a "dog" but to my surprise and delight, it proved to be a low-key masterpiece.

It is the story of two Cambridge University students, both runners, and of their striving to make the British team for the 1924 Olympic Games in Paris. One was a charming and talented Jew, who strove to win to prove his superiority over the establishment who he felt held him in contempt.

The other was a Scot who planned to become a Church of Scotland Missionary in China, who ran for the glory of God. He refused to run on a Sunday. He placed his convictions above Great Britain, his desire to win and his inevitable fame. He made a deliberate choice and he placed the observance of his religion above the almost fanatical and chauvinistic supremacy of sport.

A few days after I saw the picture, it received an Oscar as the best picture of the year. It pleased me when I heard that Pagan Hollywood endorsed my judgment and chose to honor a clean, well-told story about intangible goals — in other words, a story about real love.

Oh Lord, help us to set our goals and to keep our principles and not to twist or bend our commitments. When we rationalize, we soon compromise, both our love of You and our love for our neighbor. Love is a strange, misunderstood word, which comes from the Latin delego, to choose. Choice means to opt to live morally, and not to deviate one iota from our standards. Love demands that hour by hour, day by day, we sacrifice our selfish and personal interests for our final goals. We will be judged by love, not so much in what we do, as on how much love we put into doing it.

Give us, Oh Lord, the strength not to shuffle along nor to amble, not even to trot nor jog, but to run all out in life's Olympics. The prize is better than a gold medal or an Oscar. We have been searching the wrong lists for our world heroes — Lord, let's look at You for a change. Amen.

153 top golfers chase U.S. Open title at Pebble

THE NATION'S TOP golfers are vying for the U.S. Open Championship this weekend at Pebble Beach. A field of 153, led by Jack Nicklaus, who won the Open here in 1972, and Craig Stadler, leading money-winner for 1982, are competing for a total purse of $375,000. The winning professional will get a cash prize of $60,000; the top amateur will be awarded a gold medal.

Tournament play began at 7 a.m. Thursday, June 17. It continues Friday, Saturday and Sunday over the treacherous Pebble Beach Golf Links. Practice rounds were held Monday-Wednesday.

Defending Champion David Graham heads the list of 50 players who were exempt from both local and sectional qualifying rounds in May and earlier this month. Former U.S. Open champions Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Hale Irwin, Jerry Pate, Hubert Green and Andy North are also exempt as well as U.S. Amateur Champion Nathaniel Crosby.

The spectacular beauty of Pebble Beach provided the setting for the 1961 Amateur and the 1972 Open Championships, both won by Nicklaus, who has also won three Crosby Pro-Am Tournaments here and who is very much at home at Pebble.

Nicklaus is one of only four golfers who have won four Open championships. He was victorious in 1962, 1967, 1972 and 1980. Nicklaus also holds the record for the lowest 72-hole score in an open, whacking a 272 on his way to the championship in 1980.

While Nicklaus is certain to attract a large gallery, Craig Stadler, who won impressively a couple of weeks ago in the Kemper Open, is favored to be among the top finishers. He has already won more than $312,000 on the Tour this year. Stadler won the Kemper last year, too.

Ray Floyd, a 20-year veteran of the PGA Tour, is one of the hottest golfers in the country right now. He finished with three straight birdies to win $72,000 last weekend in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic. With $230,796 in Tour winnings this year, he is just behind Stadler, and now ranks sixth on the all-time career earnings list with $2,022,597. (Nicklaus is the all-time money-winner with $3.9 million. The other top winners are Tom Watson, Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin and Tom Weiskopf.)

All starters will play in the first and second 18-hole rounds on Thursday and Friday. The 60 lowest scorers and any tying for 60th place or anyone within 10 strokes of the leader for the first 36 holes are eligible for the third and fourth 18-hole rounds on Saturday and Sunday.

In case of a tie, an 18-hole playoff will be scheduled for Monday, June 21. If the playoff results in a tie, the players will continue immediately to play off hole by hole in a "sudden death" finish until the winner is determined.

Designed by two golfers, Jack Neville and Douglas Grant, Pebble Beach opened for play in 1919. The majestically beautiful course with its eight perilous cliff-lined holes along Carmel Bay, has been the host club for six previous USGA championships, more than any other California club.

Five other USGA Championships have been held at Pebble Beach. Here, Betty Jameson won her second consecutive U.S. Women's Amateur in 1940; Robert H. (Skee) Riegel won the 1947 U.S. Amateur; and the following year, Grace Lenczyk won the Women's Amateur.

Admission is $22 for each day of tournament play. Tickets are available at all Bass and Ticketron outlets and at the Pebble Beach gates. A season ticket, which entitles the bearer to admission for the four days of tournament play, a $10 program and free parking each day, is available for $90. USGA officials said they would not sell programs after Thursday night.

For more information, phone 649-6736.

CAN JACK DO IT AGAIN? Jack Nicklaus, who has won three Crosby Pro-Am tournaments at Pebble Beach, also won the U.S.

Amateur title here in 1961 and the Open crown in 1972. He has won four Open Championships.

How Nicklaus won here in 1972

PEBBLE BEACH Golf Links, one of the world's finest examinations of championship golf, also provided the setting for the 1961 Amateur and 1972 Open Championships, both won by Jack Nicklaus, who also has won three Crosby tournaments there and has handled this architectural masterpiece better than anyone. They were his second Amateur and third Open titles. Nicklaus added a record-tying fourth Open title at Baltusrol in 1980.

Nicklaus won the 1972 Open with a score of 290, two over par. It remains the highest winning score since 1963 when eventual champion Julius Boros, Arnold Palmer and Jack Cupit scored 293 to tie for first place.

As testimony to Pebble Beach's difficulty, only 48 of the 150 starters scored lower than 80 for both the first and second rounds. Nicklaus had rounds of 71-73-72-74 and was the only player not to have at least one round of 76 or higher.

The final round produced a classic rematch: defending champion Lee Trevino grouped with Nicklaus, whom he beat in a playoff for the 1971 title. But the complexion changed quickly. Trevino got off to a bad start, and Nicklaus suddenly was challenged by Arnold Palmer.

At one point, Palmer had an eight-foot putt for birdie on the par-5, 14th, and Nicklaus had a similar putt on the par-3 12th for par. If Palmer made his and Nicklaus missed, Palmer would be ahead. Instead, Palmer's putt eased by the edge of the cup and Nicklaus holed his to retain the lead.

In a final dramatic moment, Nicklaus hit the flagstick on the par-3, 218-yard 17th hole with a 1-iron shot that left him only a six-inch putt for birdie. Four strokes ahead of Bruce Crampton, Nicklaus played the 18th hole cautiously and won by three.

The 1972 Championship marked the U.S. Open debut of Tom Watson, who tied for 29th. The USGA received 4,196 entries. A total of $202,400 in prize money was awarded. First prize was $30,000, exactly half of what it will be this year.

The Open started as amateur event in 1895

THE U.S. OPEN started small, practically as an after thought to the Amateur Championship when it was first played in 1895. In that first pioneer decade before the turn of the century, the Open was staged for amateurs and migrant English and Scottish golf professionals.

The first Open was held on a nine-hole course at Newport, R.I., on October 4, 1895, during the same week and on the same layout as the first U.S. Amateur. Both championships originally had been scheduled for September, but were postponed because of a conflict with a more established Newport spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started the 36-hole competition, four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner, scoring 91-82-173 with a gutta percha ball, was Horace Rawlins, an English professional who had come over the previous January to be an assistant at the Newport Golf Club. He was 21. There were five money prizes totalling $335: $150, $100, $50 and $10. It was the first such offering in this country. Rawlins also won a $50 gold medal and, for his club, custody of the Open Championship Cup, presented by the USGA, for the next year. The original cup was destroyed in September, 1946, in a fire at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club.

The U.S. Open grew in stature as an important world golf event as domination of the game by American players evolved. Young John J. McDermott was the first American to break the British monopoly, winning the 1911 and 1912 U.S. Opens. Francis Ouimet, as a 20-year-old amateur, stunned the golfing world with his playoff victory over two of the game's giants, English pros Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in 1913. In the years that followed, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Bob Jones reinforced the prestige of their U.S. Open victories by also capturing the older, more established British Open.

In 1922, as the U.S. Open became more popular, tickets were sold for the first time. With player interest also on the rise, the concept of sectional qualifying started in 1924.

In 1932 John Goodman became the fifth and last amateur golfer to win the U.S. Open. Besides Ouimet in 1913, the other amateur winners were Jerome D. Travers (1915), Charles Evans, Jr., (1916) and Bob Jones (1923-36-29). Since then only Marvin (Bud) Ward and Jack Nicklaus launched serious bids to capture an Open title during their amateur days. Ward missed a playoff with Byron Nelson, Craig Wood and Denny Shute by one stroke in 1939 and finished fifth in 1947.

At age 20, Nicklaus finished second behind Arnold Palmer in 1960, posting a 282, the 72-hole scoring record by an amateur in the U.S. Open, and tied for fourth place in 1961. In the 1950s Billy Joe Patton, Harvie Ward and Ken Venturi all turned in impressive Open performances as amateurs.

Nicklaus turned professional and won the 1962 Open title in his rookie season. He also won in 1967, 1972, and 1980 to become one of only four golfers to capture four Open Championships. The others include Jones, Willie Anderson (1901, 1903, 1904, 1905) and Ben Hogan (1948, 1950, 1951, 1953). Nicklaus shot 272 in the 1980 Open Championship at Baltusrol Golf Club to set a new 72-hole scoring record.

The Open received its first national television exposure at Baltusrol in 1954. It also marked the first time an Open course was roped from tee to green so the spectators were no longer allowed in the fairways.

In 1959, Open entries reached a then-record high of 2,385 and the USGA expanded the qualifying system to two stages — local and sectional. Since 1959, only two players have survived both qualifying tests and won the Open Championship — Ken Venturi in 1964 and Orville Moody in 1969.

National television coverage was expanded in 1977 by ABC Sports so that all 18 holes receive live coverage on the final two rounds.

The USGA extended the U.S. Open to 72 holes in its fourth year, 1898. The long-time format of 72 holes in three days was changed to four 18-hole daily rounds in 1965.

RAY FLOYD finished with three straight birdies last weekend to win the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic. He boosted his 1982 earnings to $231,000, and his all-time winnings to $2,022,000, placing him sixth on the all-time winners' list. He is one of the hottest golfers on the Tour this year.

Film review:

Another Spielberg masterpiece

By LISA JENSEN

E.T. With Henry Thomas and Dee Wallace. Written by Melissa Mathison. Directed by Steven Spielberg. A Universal release.

Despite the hype, E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial is not another over-produced Spielberg blockbuster, but a modest fairy tale. After dreaming up the original story, Spielberg had the good sense to farm out the scriptwriting to Melissa Mathison, who co-wrote The Black Stallion. The result is Spielberg's most controlled, fluid and accessible film to date, in which the euphoric tone of the last 20 minutes of Close Encounters is sustained throughout.

The story takes place in an innocuous setting, a tract housing development in the American southwest. One night, a spaceship of benign alien researchers lands on a wooded hillside to study the place, but when they're surprised by a party of earth men, they're forced into a hasty take-off. In the commotion, one lone alien is accidentally left behind.

The frightened little creature takes refuge in a nearby yard, where he's found by wary but compassionate 10-year-old Elliot (beautifully played by Henry Thomas), who gradually earns the alien's trust and friendship, nicknames him "E.T." and hides him up in his room. The plot centers on the conspiracy of Elliot and his older brother (Robert MacNaughton) and little sister (Drew Barrymore) to keep E.T. hidden from their hip, loving but divorce-preoccupied mom (Dee Wallace), while E.T. tries to contact his companions and get back to his home planet. Meanwhile, there's a team of NASA scientists who are closing in on the alien's trail.

It's a charming, funny tale of kids, magic and pop culture, the elements Spielberg handles best. He has lots of fun with the alien's wide-eyed discovery of M & Ms, "Sesame Street" (from which he picks up primitive English) and Halloween trick-or-treaters, and the byplay between the kids is natural, unaffected and often hilarious.

The story is also told from the physical and emotional perspective of E.T. and the kids, with low camera angles (a trick also used effectively in Time Bandits) and a supporting cast of vaguely ominous adults (except for Wallace and sympathetic NASA investigator Peter Coyote) whose faces are rarely seen. And there's a disarming sense of childish wish-fulfillment in the matter-of-fact way these extraordinary events occur in so very ordinary a setting.

Spielberg combines whimsy and lyricism in the film's magical images, from Elliot and E.T. on a flying bicycle silhouetted against the moon to a glimpse of them standing arm-in-arm, spellbound, as Mom reads a chapter from "Peter Pan." And while some of the comedy veers too close to slapstick (especially when E.T. inadvertently gets drunk on beer at home while the telepathically tuned-in Elliot feels the ill effects at school) most of the humor is fresh and funny.

E.T. is a technical marvel of make-up, model animation and matte effects, designed by Carlo Rambaldi and ingeniously animated by the special effects crew at Industrial Light and Magic. But he's so full of life and also wholly believable as a character — poignant, ingenuous and wise by turns. Spielberg's respectful approach never reduces him to mere decorative cuteness, and the beguiling relationship between E.T. and Elliot is the emotional crux of the film.

Of course, cynics may criticize the film for its rampant sentimentality. But because the tone is so buoyantly good-natured, things that would seem shamelessly manipulative in a more calculating film work beautifully here. Spielberg doesn't bludgeon us with schmaltz, he comes by his emotional effects honestly, through our affection for the characters. You'd have to be clinically dead not to cry when E.T. says goodbye in the last scene (reminiscent in its sweet simplicity to the finale of The Wizard of Oz), but you come away feeling jubilant, not drained.

Anyway, this is supposed to be a kids' film, from its dubious attitude toward adults to the heroic bike chase in the last reel. And sure enough, with its fanciful humor and joyous innocence, E.T. will delight children and former kids of every stripe.

What's playing at the movies

Annie: A musical inspired by one of America's favorite comic strips since it began in 1924, Little Orphan Annie. The film which has drama, humor, thrills and music, is about the trials and tribulations of Annie and her dog Sandy. Other familiar characters are Daddy Warbucks, Puntab and Rooster. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Author! Author!: A sensitive and warm-hearted comedy about a New York playwright, Ivan Travalian, played by Al Pacino, whose new play is about to open on Broadway and whose wife suddenly leaves him — leaving him to care for their five children, four of whom are hers from three previous marriages. Tuesday Weld stars as the soon-to-be ex-Mrs. Travalian and Dyan Cannon as the Hollywood actress who stars in Travalian's play and hopes to assume the lead in his love life. At the Village Theater.

Bambi: The perennially popular animated creation of the Disney studios. The story of a little fawn and his adventures as he grows into a majestic stag. Rated G. At the Dream Theater.

Conan The Barbarian: Arnold Schwarzenegger stars in this mythical movie based on pulp magazine tales of the 1930s. Many technical effects throughout the film. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid: Steve Martin and Carl Reiner at their creative best. One of the funniest movies without a doubt. Spoof of '40s private eye flicks in which Martin roams through adventures that have him talking and scheming with such screen idols as James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Veronica Lake and Bette Davis, in film clips from some of their classic movies. Rated G. At the Center Cinemas.

E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial million-dollar creature from outer space who has a magical life of its own. A Steven Spielberg fantasy. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Firefox: Produced and directed by and starring Clint Eastwood. Eastwood plays an American fighter pilot chosen to steal a sophisticated Russian jet, the most devastating killing machine ever built. At the Golden Bough.

Grease 2: The story picks up two years after the original "Grease" gang's graduation from Rydell High School. Maxwell Caulfield stars as a new kid in school who gets smitten by Michelle Pfeiffer, outlaw sorority leader. Rated PG. At the Regency.

Hanky Panky: A comedy with Gene Wilder and Saturday Night Live funny girl Gilda Radner. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Poltergeist: A Spielberg film. This is not the conventional horror film. The setting for the unusual story is in a very normal suburb where very unnormal things happen. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Rocky III: Possibly the best of all the Sylvester Stallone Rocky films. At the Hill Theatre.

The Road Warrior: An extraordinary mythological tale, full of exciting action sequences and suspense. Mel Gibson (the dark-haired soldier of "Gallipoli") stars as an invincible hero of a barren and lawless wasteland. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theater.

Star Trek II — The Wrath of Khan: More exciting adventures and special effects with the same Star Trek crew, William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy, to provide the thrills. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Victor Victoria: Held over. Romantic comedy set in the 1930's Paris. Julie Andrews stars as a down-on-her-luck singer and James Garner as a tough Chicago nightclub owner, with Robert Preston, Lesley Ann Warren and Alex Karras. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater.

Hidden Valley offers chamber music recitals

Hidden Valley Music Seminars will open its summer season with a two-concert recital series featuring Glenn Dicterow, Concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic, and Lorne Munroe, principal cellist of the New York Philharmonic. The recitals will be given at 8 p.m. Sunday and Monday, June 20 and 21 in the Hidden Valley Theater, Carmel Valley and Ford roads, Carmel Valley.

Dicterow will perform Beethoven's String Sonata No. 5, "The Spring," Suite Italienne by Stravinsky; Sonatasatz by Brahms; and Franck's Sonata for Violin Sunday evening.

Dicterow made his professional debut at the age of 11 with the Los Angeles Philharmonic. He has appeared as soloist with most of the major American orchestras and performed under conductors Josef Krips, David Zinman, Andre Kostelanetz and Zubin Mehta. He recorded the violin solos for the sound track of the award-winning film The Turning Point.

Munroe will perform Monday, June 21. His program will include Divertimento by Haydn; Sonata in D Major by Bach; Elegie by Faure; Allegro Appassionato by Saint-

Saens; and Mendelssohn's Sonata, Opus 58. Principal cellist of the New York Philharmonic since 1964, Munroe has made more than 80 solo appearances with that orchestra. He gave his first public performance at age five in his native Winnipeg, Canada. Munroe studied with Gregor Piatigorsky at the Curtis Institute of Music and has appeared as soloist with major orchestras in America, Canada and Europe.

Both Munroe and Dicterow are in California to present Master Classes at Hidden Valley and to participate in the 1982 Masters Festival of Chamber Music.

Tickets are $8. They are available in Carmel at Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., and How To Do Anything Bookstore, Lobos Lodge Court; in Monterey at the Record Cove; and in Pacific Grove at Lily Walter Records. Tickets may also be purchased at the door. For more information or reservations, phone 659-3115.

Evening of flamenco dance at Sunset

Rosa Montoya's Bailes Flamencos featuring special guest dancer Cruz Luna, will perform a program of Spanish classical, regional and flamenco dances at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 19 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Miss Montoya was born a gypsy into a proud flamenco family in Madrid, Spain. She is the grandniece of Ramon Montoya, considered to be the "father" of the flamenco guitar and the niece of the world-famous flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya.

She started dancing at the age of eight and was performing professionally by age 16. She arrived in the United States in 1961 with her renowned dance partner, Ciro.

Through the promotion of Sol Hurok, Rosa and Ciro toured throughout Europe, Australia, Japan and Canada. In the U.S. the duo performed at Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center in New York and in Chicago, New Orleans and at the Seattle World's Fair.

She is also acknowledged as one of the most skilled teachers of flamenco in California. Her troupe, Bailes Flamencos, which was formed in 1975, has performed at several major theatres including the Zellerbach Auditorium, the Palace of Fine Arts and the Masonic Auditorium in the San Francisco area.

Tickets are $6.50 general and $5.50 military. They are available at Carmel Music, Dolores and Sixth, Carmel; The Record Cove, 423 Alvarado, Monterey; and Lily Walker Records and Music, Lighthouse, Pacific Grove.

Works by Boilauges:

Rare paintings exhibited at Bill Dodge Gallery

Five rare primitive paintings by renowned French artist Fernand Boilauges are currently on exhibit at the Bill W. Dodge Gallery in the Court of the Fountains, Mission and Seventh, Carmel.

Boilauges, who is in his 70s, works in his Loire Valley home in France. Because of his advancing age, his originals are increasingly more difficult to acquire in the United States.

Boilauges is a pseudonym used by a famous French author and journalist. He began his career by decorating village stores and painting advertising signs. Eventually, he graduated to photography, a field in which he began specializing in portraits of family groups. This unique background is evident in his delightful paintings of family groups in front of typical turn-of-the-century French shops and stores.

In his early 30s Boilauges established himself as a major journalist in Paris. He continues to write under the respected name of Romey.

When he was 47, Boilauges exhibited at the prestigious Contemporary Primitives show at the Charpentier Gallery in Paris. As a result, his career was launched and numerous one-man exhibitions followed in France and other major international art centers.

The original paintings and limited-edition serigraphs by Boilauges are in many important collections throughout the world.

The Bill W. Dodge Gallery is the only gallery on the Monterey Peninsula that specializes in American and European primitive, naive and folk art. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

CASTLE GUION is a haunting study of a romantic French castle by Jean-Pierre Trevor. The British-born artist will be honored with his fifth annual one-man show at Miner's Gallery Americana this week. A reception for the artist is planned Saturday, June 19 from 4-7 p.m. The public is welcome. Trevor's paintings will remain on view through July 3.

Soft, romantic and dramatic:

Trevor's landscapes to open at Gallery Americana

Softly colored landscapes, romantic castles and dramatic mountain scenes are among the paintings to be exhibited at the fifth one-man show of work by Jean-Pierre Trevor at Miner's Gallery Americana. The exhibit will open with a reception for the artist on Saturday, June 19 from 4-7 p.m.; the public is welcome.

Before moving to the United States, British-born Trevor had already established a reputation in Europe for his surrealist paintings. In recent years, however, he has concentrated his talent on the demanding style of realism.

Son of the internationally known novelist, Elleston Trevor, Jean-Pierre was born in London in 1948 and educated in England, Switzerland and France. He began his art training at the age of 15 when his parents founded the Centre d'Art Mediterranee in Vallauris, the French village that was long the home of Picasso.

By the time Jean-Pierre was 20, his paintings were attracting critical acclaim in art circles in the south of France. His one-man exhibitions there attracted Princess Grace of Monaco and the Begum Aga Khan, among other society figures. He became the protege of Prince de Faucigny Lucinge, who sponsored a number of exhibits of Trevor's work in Europe.

In the U.S., Jean-Pierre worked as a matte artist with Walt Disney Productions, painting realistic and special effects for the studio. He now lives in Arizona.

Included in the new show at Gallery Americana are spectacular scenes of snowy mountain ranges in the American Southwest, pastoral views of the England he remembers from his childhood and mistily beautiful French castles. The exhibit will remain on view through July 3.

Gallery Americana is at Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street, Carmel. For further information, phone 624-5071.

Atelier Galerie will exhibit contemporary works

Three major contemporary artists — Harold Altman, Michel Delacroix and G.H. Rothe — will be featured through June at the Atelier Galerie, Dolores and Sixth, Carmel.

Altman, a renowned printmaker of the European park scene, began to use human figures against backgrounds of foliage as his principal subject in 1960. He felt encouraged to continue when the Museum of Modern Art in New York purchased an edition of 75 prints.

In 1964, when a Fulbright-Hayes research grant took him to Paris, those natural backgrounds gradually succumbed to the influence of the manicured and orderly Parisian park, a decidedly more refined version of American park scenes.

At the same time, Altman's works, which were populated with many family members, became the setting for strangers, those who visit the parks of Paris in search of solitude, a chance encounter or a tete a tete with friends.

It is a subject the artist finds continually stimulating. "I think why I've deliberately limited myself is that I find so many, many ways to say something with the same things," says Altman.

Altman was born in New York in 1924. He attended the Art Students League, Black Mountain College, the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere in Paris and was graduated from the Cooper Union Art School in New York.

Altman has had numerous one-man exhibitions of his work in museums and galleries throughout the United States, Europe and Mexico. His awards and fellowships include a Tamarind Lithography Workshop Fellowship, two Guggenheim Fellowships, a National Institute of Arts and Letters grant and a Fulbright-Hayes senior research scholar fellowship to France.

Carmel artist Gatja Rothe often works for a day, a night and another full day before sleeping six or seven hours. She spends days and nights in total silence.

She has found her own perfect medium and everything she has to say can be heard through the sensual, often erotic mezzotint images she creates.

Rothe was born in Germany. She earned an apprenticeship in jewelry-making in Westfalen, Germany in 1954 and received the degree of journeyman. In 1956 she entered the master school of Pforzheim, Germany to study art. She then spent more than 10 years working in oil paintings, drawings and etchings.

MASON ROUGE, a colorful primitive painting by Michel Delacroix, is among the collection of his works currently on exhibit at the Atelier Gallery, Dolores and Sixth, Carmel. Works by Harold Altman and G.H. Rothe will also be featured through June.

In 1968 Rothe was awarded the Villa Romana Preis, one of the most prestigious and coveted fellowships in Europe. For a year she was provided with a magnificent studio and apartment in the Villa Romana in Florence, and the materials necessary to explore any form of art she chose.

Rothe spent much of her time in Florence at the Museum of Anatomy where she worked on huge, intricate drawings of the human body. She was encouraged to draw by Professor Max Bense, the noted German philosopher and art critic. She considers Bense her guiding spirit and their unique relationship continues today.

In 1970 she moved to New York City. After spending seven years there and studying at the Art Students League, she moved to Carmel.

At the Art Students League, she began working in aquatint but this medium was not satisfying enough. In looking for the ideal technique to express her ideas, she discovered mezzotint.

Rothe's face reflects the tremendous energy of an artist who has discovered exactly what she wants to do and who is in love with her work. She is well known for her dance pieces in which her precise knowledge of anatomy gives foundation to her free invention of body forms. Independent figures interpenetrate a single fantasy space of visionary architecture in which everything pulses with high voltage eroticism.

Since 1966 she has had one-woman shows in 14 European, South American and American cities including New York, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Among the museums and corporations which collect her work are the Staatsgalerie, Stuttgart, Karlsruhe, the Bell System, the Sterling National Bank and the Museum of Erotic Art in Toronto.

Michel Delacroix is a renowned French primitive artist. When an artist is identified as "primitive," one immediately thinks of one-dimensional country scenes that may be colorful and pretty, but lack real painterly skill. This is the Grandma Moses school of primitive painting.

Delacroix's work, on the other hand, is as sophisticated as Paris, the city that is his favorite subject. It has color in abundance, but it also incorporates fine draftsmanship, subtle perspective and even humor. A Delacroix painting cannot be quickly scanned if the viewer wants to see what it is about.

His paintings and drawings dwell on a Paris that lived between the turn of the century and the end of World War I. They capture not only the lines of the buildings and the costumes of the people but the civilized gaiety of the city itself.

Born in Paris in 1933, Delacroix was at an impressionable age when World War II broke out and the Germans overran France and occupied his beloved Paris. But none of this is really reflected in his paintings. Paris, as he paints it, is a happy place, perhaps changeless.

The artist's formal schooling in art did not begin until he had finished the equivalent of an American high school education. Then he was enrolled in L'Ecole Des Beaux Arts in Paris.

Delacroix has had numerous one-man shows in this country and Europe. He has won many awards for his paintings, including the 1973 Prix Publique.

The Atelier Galerie is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. For further information, phone 624-1900.

How to make dessert with mangos

Desserts made with mangos and fresh corn dishes will be the subject of two demonstrations at the Cooks' Club this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, June 19 and 20.

Mango desserts will be demonstrated on Saturday. The preparation of mango tarts — a rich butter crust filled with French custard variation and fresh mangos — will be included.

On Sunday the chef will prepare fresh corn dishes including corn souffle and Southern corn pudding.

The demonstrations will be given from 10 a.m.-noon and from 1-3 p.m. at the Pepper-corn Restaurant in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

Admission is free. For more information, phone 625-0100.

Jazz series to present Stock

Jake Stock and his Abalone Stompers will be the featured performers at The Crossroads jazz session from noon to 4 p.m. Saturdays, June 19 and 26 at The Crossroads, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

The Crossroads has extended the jazz season due to popular demand. Admission is free.

Carmel artist to autograph his golf painting at Pebble

Just in time for Father's Day and the U.S. Open Golf Championship, Carmel artist Jack Wall will autograph prints of his painting, In the Rough. Especially appropriate for the golf enthusiast, the print shows two California quail whose habitat has just been invaded by a golf ball!

Wall will be at Albert Ltd. at the Pebble Beach Shops near The Lodge on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 17-20 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Signed prints will be available for $25.

A self-taught artist, Jack Wall began to draw at the age of 12. At 17 he became art director for a major Milwaukee department store and for the next 40 years was art and creative director for national advertising agencies, eventually establishing his own advertising agency.

During these busy years, Wall accepted commissions for sculpture, wall-size murals and other architectural and decorative sculptures in wood or marble. His commercial and fine art have achieved national recognition and received numerous awards.

Now retired, Wall has returned to one of his first loves — birds — painted in watercolor, a medium new to him. His finely detailed style presents birds in realistic poses. In the Rough, a study of California's state bird and a golf ball representing one of the Monterey Peninsula's favorite sports, is his first published print.

In addition to Albert Ltd. in Pebble Beach, In the Rough is available at Derek Rayne Ltd. and McKibbin, Ltd., Carmel; Rudy-Harris, Ltd. in The Barnyard; Cannery Row Jewelers, Monterey; and Gallery Framing and Graphics, Carmel Valley.

ARTIST JACK WALL really has a pet quail! The perky little creature has the run of his Carmel home and is a willing model for Jack's bird paintings. No doubt, he served as inspiration for In the Rough, Wall's study of California quail examining an errant golf ball.

Photographic works sought

In an effort to promote the work of Monterey Peninsula photographers, Carmel Photoart Gallery has announced that each month four local photographers will be invited to exhibit their work in the gallery.

Prints by Gretchen Ebbesson, Jeff Helwig, Heidi McGurry and Eric Pinchin will be exhibited during June.

Ebbesson's photographs of people are intimate studies. Her black and white series of unusual portraits of women friends exhibit a fine sensitivity for revealing subtle personality traits of her subjects.

Two color prints from her Prism Light Image series titled Child with Light: Light and Sound, portray a young child who listens to and captures a rainbow.

Ebbesson says: "All my life I've loved the different moods light creates. Light and its illusions now hold endless fascination for me photographically."

Helwig has worked in many media including pen and ink, watercolor and collage as well as photography. He currently works as a graphic artist and has designed record covers.

His latest photographs deal with the interplay of motion and light, space and time, and, on a more conceptual level, deals with man's relationship to 20th century technology.

McGurrin, a freelance and art photographer, is showing portraits of a friend, Nellie. Her portraits capture the humorous and serious sides of her subject's personality.

She has also done extensive photography in South America, New Mexico and Big Sur. Seven of her Big Sur photographs were included in a book presented to the White House during the Carter administration.

Other work by McGurrin includes and architectural and garden study for sculptor Edmund Kara, an album cover for John Hendricks and advertizing photography.

Pinchin, a resident of Big Sur, has been greatly influenced by the natural beauty of his environment. His colorful studies provide aerial views and close ups of mountain, sea and shore. One of his studies, a moss covered log, has an unusual three dimensional quality.

Pinchin began his photography career at age 11 and progressed through black and white, portraits, flower photography to his current nature work. He finds Big Sur and its "quaint antique ambience the perfect atmosphere for an artist, and a constant source of inspiration."

Local photographers who are interested in exhibiting at the monthly guest exhibition may request a portfolio review by phoning the gallery, 624-2015.

A visit to the Prado Museum

By RICHARD TYLER

MEMORIES of Madrid:

When you think of Madrid you invariably think of the Prado Museum, one of the world's great art museums which houses the richest and most comprehensive collection of Spanish paintings as well as masterpieces of other schools of European works, especially Italian and Flemish art.

I approached this imposing building on the Castellana, one of the main streets of Madrid, here known as the Paseo del Prado. At the entrance is a rather imposing sculpture of the painter, Diego Velazquez, who is well represented in the gallery.

The Prado was originally opened in 1819 and has since been superbly stocked with works of Velazquez, Murillo, Zurbaran, Ribera, El Greco, Berruguete, as well as with a fine collection of Titian, Rubens, Raphael, Botticelli, Correggio, Mantegna, and Bosch. The paintings were transferred from the Escorial Monastery outside of Madrid where King Philip II had originally housed them. Both he and his father, Emperor Charles V, were avid collectors and brought many art treasures from southern Italy and the Netherlands — both of which at that time were a part of the Spanish empire.

In 1774, Charles III commanded the building of a museum of natural history and sciences on this site but died before it was completed. It was only after Ferdinand VII returned to ascend the throne after Napoleon's defeat that the construction was completed. Once he was in power in 1819, the new king moved 311 pictures from the royal collections. This was the start of one of the world's major picture galleries. An interesting note is the fact that when Ferdinand VII died on Sept. 29, 1833, tragedy almost overcame the fledgling museum, for in his will the treasures of the Prado were considered the property to be divided between his two daughters. Fortunately, a commission opined "that monuments of our glories and past greatness which from very remote times the monarchs have possessed, should not be inventoried as part of this king's personal will."

The building was called the Royal Museum of Painting until 1868 when it was renamed the National Museum of the Prado after the exile of Isabelle II. It was Queen Isabelle who greatly enlarged the collection with paintings from the royal palaces and the Escorial. In addition to the art collected by the Hapsburg and Bourbon monarchies of Spain, in 1872 the Prado acquired notable paintings formerly owned by Spanish convents and monasteries.

It would take weeks to view the Prado's many paintings, statues, tapestries, frescos, and other treasures properly. But after studying the available material and seeing a special exhibition of El Greco, which would eventually make its way to the United States, I knew that the highpoints would be the Goya, Velazquez, and Bosch galleries.

The Prado provides a unique opportunity to see the full diversity of Goya's styles. One room is dedicated entirely to the Caprichos — more than 100 of them. Adjacent is a room display of two of the artist's most famous works, "The 2nd of May," showing the uprising of the Spaniards in 1808 against the French Mamelukes in the Puerta del Sol, and "The 3rd of May," which depicts the execution of patriots by a French firing squad.

Passing on, you come to a room which contains various works from the artist's "black" period when he was already deaf and lived outside the city. I was startled by the extreme contrast of the works in this room as opposed to the color that was used in the previous works. This is a side of Goya to which most of us have not been exposed and we find ourselves agitated by the dozen or so works hanging around us in this room. Black and gray and harsh actions come out from these works and it is difficult not to be emotionally involved in the subject matter.

But, just as startling is the exit from this room to a lovely quiet room in which the famous "Naked Maja" and the "Clothed Maja" hang side-by-side. When you think that you have seen the greatest of Goya's works, you are introduced to several portraits of the royal family including the superb "Family of Carlos IV" and lighthearted works such as "The Mannikin."

ONE OF THE MOST highly regarded Spanish painters over the centuries, Diego Velazquez, also has several rooms set aside for his works. His use of color, the subject matter, and the size of the paintings overwhelm. I felt as if I had been allowed to sit in the middle of the grandest feast and wanted a taste of everything.

A visit to the astounding collection of Hieronymous Bosch paintings displayed in the Flemish wing, which includes his famous "Garden of Earthly Delights" and the triptych, "The Hay Wagon," introduces you to another facet of the magnificent exhibits available at this exceptional museum.

On to the Ribera, Rubens, Titians, and Murillos, and some very good Rembrandt, Botticelli, Raphael, Weyden, and Caravaggio; and I hadn't even seen the sculpture yet.

After a bout with the Prado, I took a leisurely walk to the Retiro Park which is only two blocks away from the museum. Madrid's prettiest and most popular park, the Retiro dates to the 15th Century although it was not opened to the public until 1876. There are shady lanes decorated with statues, monuments, and fountains which are ideal for strolling. In spring and summer, band concerts are held on Sunday mornings, and members of the Catalan colony in Madrid meet and solemnly dance the sardana.

In addition to the large lake with its huge monument to Alfonso XII, there are two smaller ones stocked with ducks and swans and surrounded by weeping willows. Fountains, statues, and busts, beautiful flower arrangements, and a delightful rose garden all help to make the Retiro a welcome haven from the city's bustle.

But, after a slight respite here during which time we had some marvelous Spanish rolls, cold cuts, and cheese, we returned to the wonders of the Prado, this time through the side entrance in order to see the wonderful statue of Francisco Goya which is located in the rather small, inadequate parking lot.

Expansions to the museum were started in 1914 and have been continuous in order to house and protect the tremendous exhibit. The present administration continues to work to carry out the systematization and reformation which will improve the collection. They work to air condition the rooms to protect the treasures from air pollution. A monumental project has been presented for the future expansion of the Prado to make use of the neighboring cloister and other outlying buildings of the old Jeronimos Monastery.

But this expansion, by bringing the Prado's collection closer to the art of our time, revitalizes it, and changes it, not only due to the importance of its pictorial collection into one of the most important galleries in the world but into the living museum which makes it so exciting.

Backgammon

The four two

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 2-2 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

Three of the four moves are virtually automatic. Only the fourth two requires thought.

You must surely move two men from your 6-point to your 4-point; and from Black's 2-point to his 4-point. The only question is what to do with the fourth two.

You could easily move safely by putting an extra man on either 4-point, but this would be a waste of an opportunity. Make the fourth move from your bar point to your 5-point.

Don't think of this as leaving a blot, but as "starting" the 5-point. If Black fails to hit you, and the odds are slightly better than 3 to 2 that he won't you are a favorite to make your 5-point at your next turn. If Black does hit your blot, he was going to escape anyway and you will have a better back game with five men back than with only four.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

IN HARMONY ...

That's what riding is all about ... a calm, confident rider on a relaxed, responsive horse.

WE'RE DIFFERENT ...

The goal of the Rancho Laureles Riding Program is to teach riders to attain this special feeling.

We tailor our riding lessons to the individual. Beginners gain confidence and control; advanced riders improve their form.

We don't believe in over-mounting timid riders by putting them on more horse than they can comfortably manage, or insisting that riders jump before they're ready.

We stress the basics of correct horsemanship to teach how to ride effectively, and we make learning to ride a rewarding, enjoyable experience.

WHO CAN LEARN?

Anyone! One of the wonderful things about riding is you're never too old to learn. Horses are not just for teenage girls. They're for everyone! If learning to ride has been a dream of yours, we can make it a reality!

EXPENSIVE?

Riding lessons actually cost less than tennis, golf or skiing lessons. And you don't need any special equipment to get started. We supply horses and tack. (We're told that our school horses are a delight to ride and the best anywhere. That's an important asset in any riding program.)

BOARDING, TOO

Rancho Laureles continues to offer the finest boarding and riding facilities, including deluxe box stalls, paddocks and pasturage, plus safe sand arenas and direct access to 2,500 acres of glorious trails in Garland Ranch Regional Park.

Group or private riding lessons by appointment

To discuss your particular horse-care needs, phone Rancho Laureles Equestrian Center, "the home of happy horses."

Roundup

Exercise and health workshop given

Community Hospital will offer a workshop on Exercise and Health from 9 a.m.-noon Saturday, June 19 in the main conference room at the hospital, Holman Highway, Carmel.

Four physicians will discuss the effects of exercise with special focus on running. They will explain how exercise affects circulation, body fluids and minerals, energy metabolism, the lungs and heart. Common running injuries will also be examined. A short question and answer period will follow each presentation.

Panelists will include Robert Levy, MD, internal medicine; Terrance Moran, MD, cardiology and internal medicine; John Morrison, MD, internal medicine; and Robert Selle, MD, orthopedics.

Admission is free. Seating is limited.
For further information, phone 625-4505.

Small fry program begins at library

The Harrison Memorial Library will begin summer storytimes for preschoolers the week of June 21. The program will continue through August.

The weekly 45-minute programs will introduce the preschool child to the pleasures of literature through stories, songs, crafts and puppets.

A morning storytime for children ages three to five will be presented at 10 a.m. Tuesdays. A special bedtime session is planned for 7 p.m. Wednesdays. Children may attend in their pajamas.

For more information, phone 624-4629.

Color books to be made by kids

Kitty Drew of the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula will present an art workshop for students in grades 4-8 from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Monday, June 21 through June 29 at the Lyceum, 1073 Sixth St., Monterey.

Children will help create a coloring book about the Monterey Peninsula. The book will be sold to raise money for the Lyceum program. When the book has been printed, there will be an autograph party for the authors.

For more information, phone 372-6098.

Section 1. §1013 of Division III of Part VII of the Municipal Code of Carmel-by-the-Sea is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

1013. DISTRIBUTE ON PRIVATE PROPERTY. It shall be unlawful for any person, either directly or indirectly, to distribute, deposit, place, throw, leave, scatter or cast any handbill in or upon any private yard, grounds, walk, porch, steps, mail box, vestibule, house, residence, building, or any other private property after the person has been informed by the owner, occupant, tenant or other person having control of the private property that the handbill is not wanted. Such person shall be deemed informed that the handbill is not wanted if a sign is posted near the front or main entrance door or in any other place where such person would reasonably be expected to notice it stating "no handbills" or some other similar statement. Such person shall have an affirmative obligation to look for a "no handbills" sign before leaving handbill. These provisions shall not be deemed to prohibit the handing, transmitting or distributing of any handbill to the owner or other occupant of said vestibule, house, residence, building, or other private property.

Section 2. §1013.1 is added to Division III of Part VII of the Municipal Code of Carmel-by-the-Sea to read as follows:

1013.1 HANDBILLS DEEMED NOT WANTED: REMOVAL. If handbills are distributed, deposited, placed, thrown, scattered or cast on a repeat basis so that more than one handbill accumulates, such handbills, remaining in the place left on the private property for two days or more, shall be deemed to mean that the owner, occupant, tenant or other person having control of the property does not want the handbill. The two-day or more accumulation of handbills shall be removed by the person making repeat distribution and failure to remove the handbill shall be an infraction. Distribution of further handbills to private property where handbills have remained in the place left for two days or more shall be an infraction.

Section 3. If any part of this Ordinance, even as small as a word or phrase, is found unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section 4. This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

Introduced on this 20th day of April, 1982.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE SEA THIS 4th day of May, 1982, by the following roll call vote:

CARMEL VALLEY

PASTORAL 7½ acres + existing studio with Anthony Pool & solar collectors. Potentially 3 building sites according to existing zoning, with seclusion and sweeping views of the Valley's hills & floor. Complete owner financing at $350,000.

PRICE REDUCTION as carefully considered as the home. The owner/builder has carefully considered every detail in the home, including how to turn on more hot water when you're soaking in the tub. Now being offered at $425,000, the 3,600 square foot home, with 3 bedrooms, 2½ baths, hot tub & ocean view also has excellent financing. Call now for an appointment for a private viewing.

NEW LISTINGS

DRAMATIC OCEAN VIEWS in Carmel Valley are not common. Nor is this a common view. The 2-bedroom, 2-bath home with den is set on 1 acre and offers a separate guest house, hot tub, formal dining, a spectacular rose garden, and an enclosed animal shelter. There is room for the complete hobbyist, with excellent financing, at $315,000.

SOPHISTICATED COUNTRY LIVING for the active family — yours in a 4-bedroom, 3-bath home with orchid greenhouse, heated 200-square foot shelter for animals, manicured landscaping, hot tub, and an ocean view. With over 1½ acres of land and 3,400 square feet of space in the home, there is truly room to roam. Everyone will come together in the magnificent country kitchen, completely equipped, with handmade oak cabinets. A pleasure to see, even more a pleasure to live in with excellent financing at $375,000.

OPEN SUNDAY 2-5

25050 Outlook, Carmel Views

A UNIQUE FAMILY HOME close to Carmel, schools, shopping & beaches. A 3-bedroom, 3-bath home built for luxury & comfort, with country kitchen, massive stone fireplace, open-beam ceilings, paving tile floors, jacuzzi bath, and solar windows to bring the outside inside. Excellent financing from a motivated seller at $315,000.

a sophisticated hideaway in the sun. The dramatic and airy architecture snuggles up to the rushing waters of the creek incorporated in the design. All rooms open to lush gardens, decks, the creek, or the secluded woods. Exquisite decor, Jenn-Aire kitchen. With 25% down, assume the low-interest 1st. The owner will carry the balance. $179,000.

CARMEL SOUTH OF OCEAN

Pebble Beach

Inside the masonry wall secluding an acre site, a driveway curves past pines to the sweep of steps leading into this shingle-roofed, stucco home with the captivating ambience of an Old World manor house featuring high windows framing ocean vistas, vaulted and coffered ceilings, handsome oak cabinetry, tile and richly carpeted floors, wainscotings and wallpapers, also wide windowsills and four fireplaces.

Carved wood corbels and mantel frame the marble fireplace in the formal drawing room across the imposing entry from the dining room with moldings outlining wallpaper panels.

A stone fireplace is in the living room with breakfast bar division from a tile-countered kitchen with cooktop island. A few steps above the living room is a hall off which are a bathroom and two bedrooms, each with a walk-in wardrobe. Off the living room, too, also sharing a wet bar with it, the skylighted garden room contains informal dining space.

Sliding glass doors from the garden room open to this paneled room with a tiled jacuzzi pool, adjacent sauna, shower and exercise rooms, also convenient access to the luxurious and compartmented bath/dressing area of the master suite with a French marble fireplace gracing the bedroom.

The game room with fourth fireplace is up a short stairway as are, also, a bathroom and the study with ceiling beams, bookcases, window framing and wainscoting of oak. Increasing desirability are a utility room, dark room, wine cellar, three-car garage and three patios. Price of this property emphasizing elegance, also comfort, is $1.35 million.

YOU DESERVE IT!

This beautiful condominium features 2 bedrooms, 2 baths and an atrium. It has been professionally decorated with wallpaper, mirrors and tiled fireplace. The expanded deck offers seclusion overlooking a forest setting. Also, it has a swimming pool and tennis courts. Custom furniture available, but not included in sales price. Asking price $210,000. C183DF1.

PITCH AND PUTT

On your level lot, just a sea breeze away from the ocean, or walk to the Peter Hays Golf Course or spend a carefree day at the Pebble Beach Course, in your almost new French Normandy Villa. The spacious foyer is accented by a hand carved stairway which leads to 4 large bedrooms, each with its own bath. The tile work is as exquisitely executed as a crystal goblet! The banquet sized dining room and formal room, with its imported Louis XIV marbel fireplace are a stunning contrast to the informality of the library with its bountiful bookshelves and wet bar. The kitchen with its fine oak cabinets and custom tile offers every convenience an elegant home should have. This gracious, young estate has a 3 car garage. Offered at $795,000. C132RE4.

SPYGLASS FAIRWAY LOT

This is your chance to purchase one of the last remaining fairway lots in Pebble Beach. Located on the 13th fairway of Spyglass Golf course, the property is ideally located for the home of your choice with Southernly exposure. Out of State Seller desires a sale as soon as possible. Terms will be entertained with an asking price of $199,000. There is little or no subdivision in the near future and this could be a very wise investment. C152CP4.

A RARE OPPORUNITY

Your own mountain in Mid-Valley. This magnificent 2600 square foot new Mediterranean contemporary commands views from the ocean to the valley and beyond from its own 14 acre mountain site. The master suite has been designed to accommodate your every need, fireplace, sunken Roman tub, his and hers sinks, sauna, and a private court for sunbathing. Complete privacy, enclosed aggregate courtyard entry, a large kitchen with views, triple Jenn-Aire, center island, ceramic tile counter tops, bar-b-que, pantry, decks, oaks and triple car garage. Truly one-of-a-kind property. Extraordinary financing is available. $498,000. C157TM3.

Take a close look!

If you haven't seen Village Green lately, chances are you're in for a pleasant surprise or two.

We've just completed making an already beautiful and intimate community of 22 single-family attached homes even more so ... in keeping with the surrounding Carmel Valley community. We've added more mature landscaping to accent the rustic setting and there's now a fully-decorated model of our Plan A floorplan as well as a vignette of Plan C.

Exteriors crafted with cedar siding and shake roofs blend beautifully with landscaped front yards and individually fenced rear yards to give Village Green a special natural charm.

Best of all, we've added value to Village Green by drastically reducing prices to those who buy a new Village Green home today.

See for yourself Carmel Valley's best new-home value. See Village Green today.
